Four Bandits at Tomahawk Get $14,000 in Loot

Deputies Believe Men Cornered in Wooded Area

USE AUTO IN FLIGHT

Force Three Persons to Enter Vault During Holdup

Tomahawk, Wis.—(AP)—Authorities were notified this afternoon that deputy sheriffs believe they have the men who robbed the Bradley State bank of $14,000 at noon, cornered in a wild, wooded section in Skanawan township, a few miles south of here.

Tomahawk, Wis.—(AP)—Four men, going about their work quietly, robbed the Bradley State bank of $14,000 in currency and silver just before noon today and escaped in a large green sedan carrying Illinois license plates.

Authorities said the Illinois license number was 403,597.

Three of the men calmly entered the bank. One drew two revolvers and issued crisp commands to his companions and the three persons in the bank were ordered into the vault. The two-gun man entered the office of John Extrom, cashier, interrupting a conference between Extrom and John Nelson, Milwaukee insurance man. They, with Sylvester Odegard, teller, were ordered to lie on the floor in front of the vault.

The two-gun man's helpers then entered the vault, taking all the money excepting a few silver dollars.

Just before the robbers left, two customers, John Marcouiller and Robert Gilley, Jr., entered. They too, were assigned to places in the vault alongside Extrom.

Alarm Is Sounded

As the robbers left the bank, they issued a warning against sounding an alarm. This warning, however, was not heeded and before the driver who had remained at the wheel of the sedan, got the car underway, the bank burglar alarm rang out.

In his gasoline filling station at the corner nearby, John Sans, grabbed his revolver, ran out and fired several shots. Some window glass in stores was broken. The car sped southward out of town, its occupants apparently unhurt. The robbers, in retaliation fired a number of shots at random. Bill Carron, a garage man, said one of the bullets shot from the car just missed him.

Otto Seils, who said he was a Chicago policeman spending his vacation here, fired three shots at the fleeing car. He said he did not believe any of the shots took effect. He said five men were in the sedan and that they had a machine gun.

Extrom sounded the burglar alarm from within the vault. After the robbers left he unlocked the vault from the inside freeing the prisoners.

A bag containing $100 was overlooked by the men, who, Extrom said, took $14,000. Another bag containing about $15 in silver was dropped at the curb as the men entered the machine. The loss was covered by insurance, Extrom said.

Highway patrols were organized, and Sheriff Fred G. Krueger and deputies started in pursuit of the robbers. Authorities in nearby counties were notified of the robbery and were requested to be on the lookout for the sedan.

HOLD ROBBER SUSPECT

Duluth, Minn.—(AP)—Harold W. Ross, 31, of Duluth, was held today by authorities investigating the ill-fated attempt of three men to hold up the Bank of Cameron, Wis.

Ross was arrested yesterday soon after one of the bank robbers, slain by Cameron townsmen last Friday, was identified as Emmett Jones, 27, of Duluth. Jones was shot as three men sprinted from the bank to their automobile. In his pockets police found all the loot—$48.

Five witnesses to the holdup confronted Ross yesterday. One identified him as one of the robbers. The others were not certain.

Sheriff Zean L. Douglas of Barron-co, Wis., immediately moved to extradite Ross. It was expected the prisoner will resist, and indications were he would seek release today on a writ of habeas corpus.

The habeas corpus writ has served Ross well on two previous occasions. Once before he has been arrested in connection with robberies, once for alleged participation in the Stone Lake, Wis., bank holdup and once in connection with a $3,600 drug robbery in North Dakota. Both times he gained freedom through habeas corpus proceedings.

About two years ago Ross sued the warden of the Minnesota state prison at Stillwater for confining him on a robbery charge longer than the time agreed by court. He won the case and was awarded damages of $150.

Natural Causes Blamed For Death at Oshkosh

Milwaukee—(AP)—Satisfied that death was due to natural causes, Coroner Henry Grundman yesterday released the body of Theodore De Leoleon, 37, of Oshkosh. De Leoleon died Saturday in a restaurant operated here by his friend Gust Efantis. Efantis said De Leoleon collapsed a few hours after his arrival for a visit.

Jusserand, for 22 Years Ambassador To America, Dies

Weakened Condition as Result of Series of Operations Causes Death

Paris—(AP)—Jean J. Jusserand, former French ambassador to the United States, died at 8 o'clock this morning.

He was 77 last February. For some time he had been suffering from a kidney ailment, but although health was delicate his death was not expected.

Death came peacefully as he lay ill in his Paris home. It was learned he had been under the constant care of a physician for the past eight days because of a constitution weakened by a series of kidney operations some years ago. Madame Jusserand was with him when he died.

M. Jusserand's 22 years as French ambassador to the United States established a record for the longest continuous assignment in the history of the Washington diplomatic corps, of which he likewise was dean for an unparalleled number of years. During these years, he gradually became the confidant and mentor of the younger members of the corps and the close personal friend of many American public men.

M. Jusserand was a diplomat of the old school. Because of his unassuming manner and quiet methods, unofficial Washington can

Eight Hurt in $500,000 Piers Fire in Baltimore

Baltimore—(AP)—Three railroad piers smoldered today as firemen continued efforts to gain control of one of Baltimore's most spectacular waterfront fires. Wooden planking was still afire this morning, but was not regarded as a further menace to adjacent property.

Seven firemen and one volunteer fireman were injured while about 25 other firemen were affected by smoke.

The three piers, property of the Pennsylvania Railroad company in suburban Canton, were entirely destroyed and a fourth damaged at an estimated loss of $500,000.

The origin of the fire, which started about mid-afternoon yesterday, was not determined.

Oshkosh—(AP)—Leon Carley, Berlin, Wis., was killed Saturday night when the car in which he was riding with Frank Penzenstadler, Oshkosh, collided with a machine driven by John H. Savitzke, a farmer. Police held Penzenstadler.

Germany Acts To Prevent New Political Riots

Government Issues Decrees Banning All Outdoor Demonstrations

15 DIE IN CLASHES

Scores Injured in Weekend Of Outbreaks in Many Parts of Nation

Berlin—(AP)—The German government issued a decree today banning all outdoor demonstrations following a weekend of political rioting in which 15 persons were killed and scores injured.

The cabinet was faced with a number of other possibilities, such as declaring a state emergency as demanded by various political groups, forbidding the wearing of uniforms as the centrists and trade unions want, or outlawing the Communists as the Nazis demanded, but it considered a general ban on all outdoor processions and demonstrations the most effective method of avoiding further bloody weekends.

Permission to wear uniforms continued, however. The cabinet reinstated them under pressure from Adolf Hitler, Nazi leader, and could hardly afford politically to rescind its own orders.

In some quarters it was maintained that as long as the uniforms are permitted the possibility of further clashes will remain but since large crowds will no longer be permitted to march or meet outdoors the government considered that an effective brake was put on the situation by today's decree.

Thousands took part in the bloody battles of the past weekend.

Late reports reaching Berlin today said there were clashes also between opposing political groups at Leipsic, in eastern Frisia, in Hanover, at Luckenwalde, Chemnitz, Barmen, Gladbach, Remschiled, Bochum, Detmold, Wismar, Freising, and Itzehoe.

Language is Stern

The new deceree is a stern document. In a semi-official statement issued shortly after it was published the government indicated that "it reserves all further measures to itself and will not hesitate in case of need to proceed severely against groups working with explosives and firearms, even to the extent of standing up against a wall and shooting those caught with firearms or explosives."

This is possible without resorting to martial law by inducing the civil courts to proceed with the utmost dispatch in imposing the death penalty upon the guilty.

The governor admitted that "bans on uniforms and demonstrations were rescinded on condition that the election campaign would be conducted in an orderly manner, but that this condition was not fulfilled."

As for the National Socialist threat to arm the storm troops if the government did not proceed against disorderly elements of the left, it was stated the government in no case will tolerate the arming of any political organization.

The statement indicated that the government regards the Communists as the chief trouble-makers and that the new decree was directed chiefly against them.

POLICE ON GUARD

Altona, Holstein, Germany—(AP)—Excited groups of people who gathered in the various sections where the Nazi-Communist battle took place yesterday in which 12 persons were known to be killed, caused police to send reinforcements to prevent another outbreak.

Local authorities said they believed the number of deaths exceeded 12 and that the groups involved were withholding their losses from the police.

More than sixty were injured, including three women.

Oshkosh Ocean Plane is Damaged at Air Field

Oshkosh—(AP)—Struck by the whirling metal propellor of a biplane, which was moving across the field preparatory to a take off, the right wing tip of Clyde Lee's trans-Atlantic monoplane was damaged at the Oshkosh flying field, late Saturday.

Repairs will require a week or 10 days as mechanics will have to replace eight braces in the wings and put on new covering. Gilbert [illegible], North Fond du Lac, pilot of the biplane, momentarily forgot about the location of Lee's unoccupied plane and crashed into it while watching out the other side of his ship to gauge his distance from another object.

No persons were injured. The biplane had only a dented radiator.

Madison Cop Slaying Suspect is Arrested

Madison—(AP)—Madison police were informed today that Samuel Wiseberg, 33, is being held in Pittsburgh, in connection with the slaying of Edward Riphon, Madison patrolman.

Riphon's bullet-pierced body was found near here May 15. The stolen car used by the slayers was traced to McHenry, Ill., and was found to be owned by a Major Woods of Chicago.

Woods has partially identified a photograph of Wiseberg as that of a man who, with a companion, held him up and took his car prior to the slaying. Chief of Police William McCormick of Madison, has not yet decided to send an agent to Pittsburgh to verify the identification.

Salesman is Slain During Argument Over Salt Shaker

Omaha, Neb.—(AP)—Paul Walton, 33, insurance salesman of Omaha, was shot and killed early today by Sam Pappas, restaurant manager, during an argument over a salt shaker.

Walton with his wife and two friends entered the restaurant and ordered sandwiches. As they were leaving, Mrs. Walton told police, Pappas accused Walton of stealing a salt shaker. The argument that followed, she said, ended when Pappas grabbed a gun and shot Walton in the head.

Pappas told police that Walton had pulled a knife and lunged at him during the argument.

"I disarmed him," Pappas said, "but he lunged at me again. I grabbed a gun and fired. I only meant to scare him."

Southwest Still Suffering Most From Heat Wave

Mercury Remains Above 100 Degrees in Places—50 Die Over Weekend

(By the Associated Press)

Southwestern and north central states still perspired today under a heat wave which had abandoned the east and midwest after causing 50 additional deaths over the weekend.

Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas and Arizona thermometers were read in three figures while those in the Great Lakes region, eastern gulf states and Ohio valley fell toward the normal 80's.

However, the sufferers held hope of early relief for thunder showers were predicted generally for today or tomorrow over the Mississippi valley.

Drownings comprised most of the 33 deaths reported in the hot area yesterday. Maryland had seven, Buffalo, N. Y., Minnesota and Iowa three, Kentucky, two, and Illinois, one, as those who anticipated continuation of the heat sought lakes and beaches.

Texas, on the other hand, told of four fatal prostrations and temperatures of 106 at Corsicana and Beaumont and 105 at San Antonio, Gainesville and Wichita Falls. Ponca City, Okla., saw the mercury go to 104 and Oklahoma City 99.4, the hottest yet this year. Phoenix, Ariz., recorded 106 and Kansas City 94 as the heat blanketed the mountain section.

St. Louis was six degrees cooler than Friday at 95. Indianapolis at 92 was another exception to cooler weather in the midwest. Milwaukee was comfortable at 80 and Superior, Wis., at 86, but across the Mississippi river to the west it was another story. It was 100 at Williston, N. D., and Moorhead, Minn., and 94 at Minneapolis and Omaha.

Chicago's highest reading was 79 and New York's 82.

Snowstorms in Andes Delay Hunt for Plane

Mendoza, Argentina—(AP)—Violent snowstorms in the Andes today slowed up the search for nine passengers on a trans-Andean plane which disappeared somewhere between here and Santiago, Chile, last Saturday morning. The plane was last sighted over Las Cuevas, 10 miles from the Chilean border.

The pilot, Charles J. Robinson, an American, was substituting for the regular pilot. Two other members of the crew, C. W. Myers, radio operator, and A. Woods, the steward, also are Americans.

Heat Still Prevents Hunt For Bodies in Oil Ship

New Orleans, La.—(AP)—A three day fight to extinguish flames enveloping the oil tanker Raleigh Warner aboard which five were known to have died in a series of explosions was ended today but the heat of its plates prevented search for four members of the crew still missing. Firemen said they saw bodies in the hold of the ship.

Flemington, N. J.—(AP)—John Hughes Curtis, recently sentenced to a year in prison for hindering capture of the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby, was released on bail today.

Cards Foretold Mate's Slaying, Widow States

Chicago—(AP)—Police shuffled through a slim deck of clues today in their investigation of the slaying of George Carl, storekeeper foretold, his widow said, 60 hours in advance by "cards of death" she drew from a neighborhood fortune teller's hands.

They held for questioning Ivan Grilec, 38, a brother-in-law of the dead man, who they said they had learned, sold Mrs. Vera Carl, the widow, a $5,000 insurance policy with double indemnity clause in which she was named beneficiary. Grilec, however, denied having any insurance dealing with Carl.

Mrs. Carl told police she and her mother had warned Carl that on Thursday she turned up three cards predicting his death at the home of Mrs. Susie Ballo, who has a neighborhood reputation as soothsayer. He laughed at their forebodings, she said. Mrs. Ballo corborated their statements as to the "fatal" deal.

Carl was found shot to death late Saturday night in his southside grocery store by his wife and son. The widow notified police after calling a friend, John Perek. The rear of the store was in much disorder, the cash register overturned and empty.

Police Lieut. Herbert Burns said while Carl might have been killed by robbers, he was investigating also possibility that the slayer had simulated robbery. No weapon was found.

First information of the occult turn of the case came to officers from the victim's 9-year-old son Dorn. He said that Friday his mother asserted: "Your father will be shot Saturday night. It's in the cards." Mrs. Carl then acknowledged drawing the death cards and Mrs. Ballo, questioned, repeated that the cards not only foresaw the violent death of Carl, but indicated his widow would "get some money" and would have trouble with the authorities.

Hoover to Put O. K. on Relief Bill Tomorrow

First Session of 72nd Congress Adjourned Late Saturday Night

CONVENED ON DEC. 7

Home Loan Bank Bill Passed With Currency Expansion Provision

Washington—(AP)—The precedent-destroying first session of the seventy-second congress is over—and President Hoover tomorrow will sign the $2,122,000,000 relief bill, writing "finis" if not "well done" to one of the legislators' biggest jobs.

This will become law another of the pieces of legislation that defied tradition and stretched this last meeting of congress into its eighth hectic month before adjournment at 11:25 Saturday night.

Like most of the congressmen, Mr. Hoover took advantage of the let-up in business to leave town. He went to his Rapidan camp. Later a statement was issued in his name saying that "although there are some secondary features of the measure to which I have objection," the chief executive will sign the relief bill tomorrow.

This measure in itself would entitle the just-adjourned congress to emphasis in the history books. But unusual as are its provisions, it is matched in newness by many other things that kept Washington in a flurry from Dec. 7, 1931, until July 16, 1932.

Last Minute Votes

The closing hours of Saturday's session were anything but calm. They saw:

The senate put on the calendar for the December session a resolution sponsored by Senator Glass (D., Va.) to replace the 18th amendment with another barring the saloon and giving liquor control to the states. The time for taking it up, however, remained problematical.

Three Killed in Oklahoma Fight

Slayer of Bill Tilghman, Pioneer Peace Officer, Among Victims

Madill, Okla.—(AP)—Three men were killed in a Sunday pistol duel in a drug store here, one of the trio being Wiley Lynn, acquitted eight years ago of the slaying of Bill Tilghman, pioneer peace officer.

Crockett Long, operative of the state bureau of criminal identification, fell with four bullets in his body, fired, officers said, by Lynn. Long fired from the hip as he fell, mortally wounding Lynn, who died this morning in a hospital.

Rhody Watkins, a farm boy, struck by a bullet as he stood at the soda fountain, died in an Ardmore hospital early today without regaining consciousness.

John Milburn, a bystander, was hit by the fire, but was not seriously wounded.

The shooting was believed by investigators to have climaxed a feeling of bitterness against Long, former chief of police here, who once arrested Lynn on a liquor charge.

Eye witnesses said the shooting started when Lynn, who apparently had been drinking, walked into the drug store shouting "Crockett Long throw 'em up. I'm going to get you sometime and it might as well be now."

Lynn, formerly a federal prohibition agent, shot the colorful plainsman, Tilghman, to death in front of a dance hall at Cromwell, boom oil town. Lynn was acquitted on the grounds of self-defense.

St. Lawrence Seaway And Power Treaty is Signed by Canada, U. S.

Hoover Hails Action as Greatest Internal Project

POINTS TO BENEFITS

Says Ocean Shipments Can be Made to Lake Cities

Washington—(AP)—President Hoover, in a statement on the St. Lawrence treaty today, praised that agreement but reminded that to take effect it "must be ratified by the legislative bodies of the two governments."

The president's text follows:

"The signing of the Great Lakes St. Lawrence waterway treaty marks another step forward in this the greatest internal improvement yet undertaken on the North American continent. The treaty must yet be ratified by the legislative bodies of the two governments and is not effective unless this is done.

"The treaty represents to me the redemption of a promise which I made to the people of the midwest. It provides for the construction of a 27-foot waterway from the sea to all Canadian and American points on the Great Lakes. Such a depth will admit practically 90 per cent of ocean shipping of the world to our lake cities in the states of New York, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin and Minnesota. Its influence in cheapening transportation of overseas goods will stretch widely into the interior from these points. Its completion will have a profoundly favorable effect upon the development of agriculture and industry throughout the midwest. The large by-product of power will benefit the northeast. These benefits are mutual with the great dominion to the north.

Predicts Great Gains

"The waterway will probably require 10 years for completion, during which time normal growth of traffic in the nation will far more than compensate for any diversions from American railways and other American port facilities. The economic gains from improved transportation have always benefitted the whole people.

"Under the estimates, the total cost will be approximately $543,000,000, of which approximately $272,000,000 will need be expended by the United States. Some portion of these expenditures has already been made by both countries, and the actual total amount of new funds to be called on from the United States is estimated at about $258,000,000, and from this sum must be deducted the realization which may be made from about 1,100,000 horsepower on the American side of the international section. The disposal of this power is reserved as a purely domestic question in the United States.

Diversion Question

"The question of the effect of the treaty provision covering the diversion of water from Lake Michigan upon the 9-foot waterway from Chicago to the Mississippi has been raised. I may quote the statement I received from General MacArthur, acting secretary of war, which clarified this question:

"'Dear Mr. President:

"'I am in receipt of your request for a statement in confirmation of the verbal assurances given to you and to the secretary of state by the corps of engineers, that the provisions in respect to the diversion of water from Lake Michigan in the proposed Great Lakes St. Lawrence Deep Waterway treaty are sufficient to provide for the maintenance of the 9-foot waterway from Chicago to the Mississippi.

"'I am glad to confirm that the provision in the treaty does provide the necessary diversion for this purpose.

Respectfully
Douglas MacArthur
Acting Secretary of War'

"The Canadian project of a two-stage development in the international section has been adopted instead of the original American project of a single stage development. The cost is slightly more, but the Canadian officials have felt that the two-stage development is desirable for many reasons, amongst others for the complete assurance of the safety of the city of Montreal.

"The project is of first importance to the whole continent. The many and extremely complex engineering, legal, commercial and international problems have been worked out by the representatives of both countries in a spirit of cooperation of which all North America can be justly proud."

Two More Veterans are Arrested in Washington

Washington—(AP)—Two war veterans were arrested today in front of police court as they attempted to organize a protest in connection with the trial of three of their comrades on charges of parading in front of the White House.

The men, Alfred Hale, 48, Detroit, Mich., and John Fabroshoski, 39, of Pittsburgh, were seized by police as they were shouting to pedestrians to assemble in protest.

The men on trial were Urban Ledoux, New York social worker, known as 'Mr. Zero,' Patrick Joseph Hannigan, Detroit, and Nathan Kalb, one-armed, Manhattan, N. Y., veteran.

Lake Elsinore, Calif.—(AP)—Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, evangelist, was reported by her physician today to be in such critical condition that "the slightest shock probably will result in her death."

Warned Cops Not To Use 3rd Degree, Prosecutor Avers

John Doe Hearing Begun In Death of Prisoner At Mineola, N. Y.

Mineola, N. Y.—(AP)—Assistant District Attorney Martin W. Littleton, Jr., testified today he had warned police against using any third degree tactics on Hyman Stark, alleged assailant of a county detective's mother who died after eight hours "interrogation."

Littleton was the first witness at the John Doe hearing into the death before Supreme Court Justice Meier Steinbrink. Examination was conducted by District Attorney Elvini Edwards, who was out of town when Stark, a murder suspect and former convict, died.

"When I was told that Stark and three companions had been arrested for assaulting and injuring the mother of a policeman I realized what might ensue," Littleton testified. "I warned both Deputy Chief of Police Frank J. Tappan and an inspector.

"I said 'remember that one black eye may spoil a perfectly good murder case.'"

Littleton said both police officials agreed with him that no third degree methods should be used. Stark was questioned by police for eight hours and died Friday night of a broken larynx. He also suffered a fractured skull and many body bruises.

Two Suspended

Deputy Chief Tappan and Joseph Hizenski, son of Mrs. Valeria Hizenski, the woman who was beaten by four robbers who entered her Roslyn home and stole four dollars and a cheap ring, have been suspended from the county police force.

Littleton said he himself took statements from Stark's three companions and that these statements and other evidence in the possession of police were "better than a confession."

"There wasn't any need to question Stark," he said.

He said that Isse Stein, one of the prisoners, made a statement, but refused to sign it.

"It's true," Littleton quoted him as explaining, "but if I sign it the cops will hit me."

MAJ. GEN. HOLBROOK DIES

Washington—(AP)—Major General Willard Ames Holbrook, former chief of cavalry, died early today at Walter Reed hospital. General Holbrook, who has spent the years since his retirement in Washington, was 72 years old and a native of Arkansaw, Wis.

U. S. Power Board Favors Control of Holding Concerns

Washington—(AP)—A year's study of power holding companies has convinced the Federal Power commission that federal control of them is necessary.

This control, says the commission's preliminary report, should include service organizations of the holding companies, supervision of security issues and of contracts between holding and operating companies and regulation of accounts, providing specifically for the filing of financial reports.

"The general proposition seems to be already demonstrated that federal control of the holding company is absolutely essential to effective public regulation of the operating company," says the report. "The power commission is convinced, therefore, that the power of congress should be invoked to the fullest extent possible in the enactment of legislation stopping these loopholes in public control of the electric public utilities."

Ratification of Legislative Bodies Still Required

TEN-YEAR PROGRAM

Stimson Signs for U. S. And Herridge for Dominion

Washington—(AP)—The long-awaited treaty between the United States and Canada for the tremendous St. Lawrence seaway and power project was signed this morning.

Coincident with this action by Secretary Stimson and Minister Herridge of Canada, President Hoover heralded the accomplishment in a statement as "the redemption of a promise which I made to the people of the midwest."

The agreement, which remains subject to legislative ratification in both countries, calls for splitting in half the estimated $543,000,000 cost for a 27-foot waterway from the sea to all Canadian and American points on the Great Lakes.

"Such a depth," wrote the president, "will admit practically 90 per cent of ocean shipping of the world to our lake cities of New York, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin and Minnesota."

Disposal of the 1,100,000 horse power which is expected to be realized on the American side of the international section is reserved for settlement by this country.

In that connection, Mr. Hoover recently informed his rival for the presidency in November—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York—that federal authorities would confer with those of the interested states to agree on details once the treaty is finally effected.

As to diversion of water from Lake Michigan upon the nine-foot waterway from Chicago to the Mississippi, the president was assured by the war department that the treaty provides sufficiently for maintenance of that waterway.

Will Require Decade

The treaty question has been hanging fire for 11 years, and officials estimate that once the agreement is in complete effect it will take probably 10 years to construct the waterway.

During that time, Mr. Hoover said, "normal growth of traffic in the nation will far more than compensate for any diversions from American railways and other American port facilities."

In a brief ceremony at the state department, Secretary Stimson signed for this country and Minister Herridge for Canada.

Pending 11 years, the gigantic project calls for the development of the St. Lawrence for a 180 mile stretch from Montreal to Lake Ontario. It will enable ocean-going vessels to travel to the heart of the continent, while at the same time provide up to 2,000,000 horse power electrical energy to be divided by the American and Canadian sections bordering on the waterway.

It is now a binding agreement between the two administrations, but yet must be ratified by the legislative bodies of the two countries before going into effect.

A minute or so after 10 o'clock, Secretary Stimson penned his name, to be followed at once by Mr. Herridge.

Senate Quiz Ordered

The senate has directed that an investigation of the treaty be conducted between now and the opening of the December session of congress. But Chairman Borah of the foreign relations committee, specifically stated this was not decided upon because any "suspicion" attached to the treaty. The document calls for two dams.

The upper one in the international section, according to a recommendation of the joint board of engineers, a digest of which was released with the treaty, will be at Crysler Island, with two power

25,000 See Wisconsin Guardsmen Maneuver

Camp Douglas, Wis.—(AP)—A crowd estimated at 25,000 assembled on the military reservation here yesterday to watch Wisconsin National guard infantrymen go through their maneuvers in formal review before Governor La Follette and Brig. Gen. Ralph M. Immell.

The parade was led by the 127th and 128th regiments, comprising the 64th infantry brigade, under the command of Brig. Gen. Paul B. Clemens of Milwaukee. Other units which took part were the 32nd division tank company of Janesville, commanded by Capt. George C. Sherman; the 32nd Military Police company under Capt. Sam Slaughter of Arcadia; and the 135th Medical regiment, commanded by Col. William F. Lorenz of Madison.

Hoover Calls Aid Bill Step To Recovery

President Thinks Measure Will Do "Great Service" to Nation

Washington—(AP)— President Hoover thinks the huge relief bill he plans to sign tomorrow will do "great service" to the nation and is a "strong step toward recovery."

He included these words in an announcement yesterday that he would approve the measure. At the same time he referred to the comptroller for a ruling the bill that kept congress at work until nearly midnight Saturday—that to establish the Home Loan bank system.

The president wanted the home loan bank system; he was not so enthusiastic about the attached Glass rider for a currency expansion of nearly $1,000,000,000.

Besides making his optimistic forecast about the effect of the relief bill, the executive took this whack at the Democratic house:

"The obnoxious features which have been injected into the legislation from time to time by members of the house of representatives and had so long delayed action, have been eliminated. The $100,000,000 charity feature has been abandoned."

Mr. Hoover summarized his reactions to the bill as a whole:

"While there are some secondary features of the measure to which I have objection, they are not so great as to warrant refusal to approve the measure in the face of the great service that the major provisions will be to the nation. It is a strong step toward recovery."

The chief executive differed, though, with some members of congress as to the meaning of the publicity clause. He said "senate leaders of all parties" have agreed the Reconstruction Finance corporation's loans should not be made generally public without further congressional action. Speaker Garner, who advocated this provision, said "the language speaks for itself."

Presidential approval will end lengthy dueling between Mr. Hoover and Democrats over relief. A veto directed at Garner's insistence upon allowing loans to individuals forced congress to pass another measure after approving one. More about this individual loan business will be heard in campaign talks between now and November.

The president said inclusion in the last bill of $300,000,000 for loans to states in distress gives "a solid back log of assurance that there need be no hunger and cold in the United States; that giving the Reconstruction corporation power to lend $1,500,000,000 more for public reproductive construction work should give "employment for hundreds of thousands of people without a drain on the taxpayer"; that by letting the corporation have broader authority in agricultural loans "we should materially improve the position of the farmer."

Favors Empire Trade Committee

Stabilization of Currency Great Need, Union Congress Head Says

Ottawa, Ont.—(AP)—John Bromley, president of the British Trade Union congress, said today a permanent secretariat, to continue "what few tottering steps may be taken," should emerge from the British Imperial Trade conference which opens here next Thursday.

The conference, he declared, should aim also at stabilization of currency within the empire and to open doorways to new trade agreements with other countries.

The Irish Free State delegation, which arrived yesterday, was concerned about the impending trade war between Great Britain and the Free State, Dr. Joseph Ryan, minister of agriculture and member of the delegation, said.

Lewis Gray, prominent industrialist of Belfast, said the linen industries of northern Ireland would gladly buy Canadian-grown flax if it could be obtained, and that one of his objects in coming to Canada was to survey the flax situation.

Despite the clouded situation in relations between the Free State and Great Britain, Sean T. O'Kelly, head of the Free State group said, every effort would be made to arrange for reciprocal trade with other dominions.

PANIC AVERTED

H. M. S. Empress of Britain—(AP)—(By Radio)—Stanley Baldwin, former premier of Great Britain and president of the British delegation enroute to the Imperial conference at Ottawa, probably averted a small panic aboard ship last night when a small blaze broke out in the concert room.

The passengers were gathered for the usual concert when smoke was seen curling from the stage. An electric wire had fused.

Mr. Baldwin, who was presiding at the concert, announced quitely: "That ends the program."

The crowded room was emptied without a sign of disorder. The fire was quickly extinguished.

Millions to View Eclipse Aug. 31, Scientist Says

Wisconsin Professors Plan Trip to Maine to Study Event

Millions of people throughout the United States will peer through smoke darkened glasses for a good view of an eclipse which is scheduled to occur on the afternoon of Wednesday, Aug. 31, when the moon will cover either part or all of the face of the sun.

The eclipse of the sun on that day will be seen in varying degrees of completeness by persons living in various sections of the country, according to C. M. Huffer, professor of astronomy in the Washburn observatory at the University of Wisconsin. If you live in a certain small area about 50 miles wide, expanding across the southern part of Maine and the northern section of New Hampshire, you are likely to be surprised by almost complete darkness sometime around the middle of the afternoon.

78 Per Cent in State

But if you live in the north central section of the country, say in the state of Wisconsin, you will see approximately only 78 per cent of the sun's face covered. Then again, if you live on the north Pacific coast, the eclipse will only be about 30 per cent complete, while way over on the arid plains of the southwest, only 10 per cent of the face of the sun will be hidden from the human eye.

Prof. Huffer, along with Prof. Joel Stebbens, director of the Badger university's observatory, will travel to Maine to see the total eclipse of the sun on that day. There, with perhaps a hundred other astronomers, they will be in the "path of totality" so far as the eclipse is concerned. The two Wisconsin scientists intend to study the eclipse from some point of vantage about 25 miles inland from the town of Cape Porpoise, small hamlet on the Maine coast.

Last One Till 1945

The total eclipse on the last day in August will be the last one visible in the United States until 1945, according to Prof. Huffer. It will begin about 2:20 p. m. eastern standard time, he said, with the total eclipse occurring for about 100 seconds at 3:30, and with the entire event a thing of the past at 4:30 p. m.

Defining eclipses as a matter of correlation between movements of those two monarchs of the heaven, the sun and the moon, Prof. Huffer explained that the maximum possible duration of a total solar eclipse is seven and one-half minutes. During a total eclipse the moon's shadow slides across the earth at from 1,060 to 5,000 miles per hour, depending upon its distance from the equator and the sun's position in the sky.

Eclipse Every Year

Eclipse of the sun or the moon occur some place in the world every year, he continued. The largest number of eclipses of two heavenly bodies that can take place in any one year is seven, he said, either five of the sun and two of the moon, or four of the sun and three of the moon. The last possible number of eclipses that can occur in any one year is two, both of the sun.

Approximately 2 000,0000 persons will be in the path of totality and will see the total eclipse of the sun this year, it was estimated by Prof. Huffer. The only time that a larger number of persons saw a total eclipse was in 1925 when more than 10 000 000 persons in the thickly populated sections of the East saw the sun completely blotted out.

U. S. Professor Finds Cosmetics In Ancient Grave

Princeton Expedition, at Corinth, Finds White Face Powder

Princeton, N. J. — Dr. T. Leslie Shear, of the department of art archeology of Princeton, university has announced that he found in a burial ground in Corinth, Greece, the first sample of white cosmetic used by the women of ancient times.

The Grecian grave from which the cosmetics were taken date from 400 B. C. and chemical analysis of the findings, just completed by Professor William Foster, of the university's department of chemistry, proves that the basic method of manufacture is identical with contemporary processes.

Red cosmetics, produced from plant life by the ancients, were discovered long ago, some of this kind being on display in the British Museum in London, but archeologists had never before run across the white type, even though ancient writers had referred to it many times.

Classic Writers Justified

Dr. Shear's find is in a manner of speaking a distinct corroboration of such writers as Pliny, Ovid and Aristophanes. The latter, whose wit has amused even Broadway in late years wrote a scene in one of his comedies around the use of cosmetics by an old hag. An old Grecian poem, author unknown, observed in florid language what many moderns have also discovered — that cosmetics do not always make an elderly woman young or an ugly woman beautiful.

The line in question reads: "Never by use of psimythion can you make a Helen out of Hecuba." "Psimythion" was the Greek word for white cosmetics; Hecuba the name of the mother of Hector and Paris, who, after the fall of Troy, was so beset by woes that she became a very unattractive figure, indeed.

The cosmetics were found in a small terra-cotta toilet box in the sarcophagus, which also included vases and a dated silver coin. They were found during an expedition to Corinth in 1930 and were brought back to Princeton for analysis. The small pieces of white material were found to be cubes of carbonate of lead, which Grecian manufacturers had evidently produced by methods similar to those employed today in the manufacture of white lead, a paint pigment. Dr. Shear passed the last year with the American School of Classical Studies as field director in the excavating of the ancient market place in Athens.

Pliny Told of Process

Pliny, a naturalist as well as an author, was the foremost authority on cosmetics of his day. Of the Roman method of manufacturing cosmetics he wrote:

"It is made from very fine shavings of lead placed over a vessel filled with the strongest vinegars, by which means the lead shavings become dissolved. That which falls into the vinegar is pounded and sifted, after which it is mixed with the vinegar and then pounded into tablets and dried in the sun of summer."

Another method, according to Pliny, was used by the Greeks. By this method the lead, after being dissolved in vinegar, is washed with fresh water until all impurities have disappeared. "This is the mildest of all preparations of lead used by females to whiten their complexion." Pliny wrote. "It is, however, like scum of silver, a deadly poison."

White lead is produced today commercially in about the same manner by the Dutch process, in which perforated sheets of lead are exposed to the action of acetic acid vapors, moisture and carbon dioxide.

Baby Buggies are Needed by Welfare And Relief Council

In all the variety of shoes, clothing, overcoats, bedding and stacks of other supplies at the Appleton Relief and Welfare council storeroom on Superior-st, there is a scarcity of baby carriages.

"Baby buggies are a popular request at the store and we need one at the present moment for a lovely first born child," Mrs. Hackbert declared as she explained that 10 already have gone out of the storeroom.

She believes that somewhere in a corner of attics many Appletonians must have old baby carriages put away that would be a welcome gift to many people today who cannot afford to buy them.

The storeroom is operating on a summer schedule, being open from 1 until 5 o'clock on Wednesdays only. Anyone who wishes to give a baby carriage to the council may reach Mrs. Hackbert at 405 W. Prospect-ave.

Insurance Firms To Adopt Standard Risk Plan Jan. 1

Classifications are Reduced From 26 to 12 Under New State Law

The new standard classification of risks which fire insurance companies operating in Wisconsin must adopt next Jan. 1 meets with the approval of Appleton insurance salesmen. The new plan was worked out by the state insurance department according to H. J. Mortenson, insurance commissioner.

Insurance agents here declare that that the new list of classifications reduces 26 now in use to 12. Agents here said their work of determining the rates to be applied in various localities would be very much simplified by the new method.

The new plan of rating was worked out by the department to comply with a mandate of the last legislature. It reduces the 26 classifications now in effect in the state to 12 and Mortensen expressed the hope that the classification system will remain permanent long enough to build up some real fire risk experience in the state.

He points out that originally there were about 1,800 classes with this number continuing to dwindle from year to year until the present number was reached. As a result of the constantly changing number of classes it has been impossible to build up any adequate experience as to the fairness of fire insurance rates. The Wisconsin plan has been considered by national insurance groups but was not adopted by them.

"Wisconsin has never hesitated to venture on uncharted seas," commissioner Mortensen said. "It has pioneered and blazed the trail in the enactment of many laws that have proven of great social benefit to not only its citizens but to the public at large.

"Those who have given careful study to the development of this plan are confident that it will demonstrate its superiority over any classification heretofore devised or used in the fire insurance field, and believe it will make a valuable contribution to the rating feature of fire insurance."

Adoption of the system means removal of control of the fire insurance rating system from the companies themselves and placing full power with the state. Wisconsin has lacked the necessary experience statistics for rate making and schedules were worked out by the rating bureau maintained by the companies.

The situation aroused members of the legislature last session with a number of public hearings on the subject.

State Delayed in Move to Clear Up Claims of Indians

Loss of Time Results From Misunderstanding on Part of Jenkins

BY RUBY A. BLACK
(Post-Crescent Washington Correspondent)

Washington—Wisconsin will be delayed at least until early next year in its efforts to clear up claims of Indians living within its borders against the United States government because of what appared to be a misunderstanding on the part of Rep. Thomas A. Jenkins of Ohio.

The Wisconsin legislature authorized the state's attorney general to undertake to investigate claims Wisconsin Indians think they have against the government and prosecute such claims where his investigations indicate the Indians have a case. This was done by the state, according to Rep. George J. Schneider of Appleton, partly because private attorneys are collecting fees from Indians in efforts to prosecute claims which the Indians are led to believe they have.

Rep Schneider and Sen. John J. Blaine of Wisconsin introduced identical resolutions authorizing the Wisconsin attorney general to go into governmental records to investigate the claims. This was essential, it was explained, because the comptroller general of the United States refused to permit access to certain records on the grounds that federal law prohibits it, although the Secretary of the Interior and the Commissioner of Indian affairs were permitting the attorney general of Wisconsin to use their records in investigating the claims.

Same Objections

Every time the resolution has come up in the House Representatives, there have been objections to it on the ground that the government should not let anybody who might be filing suit against the government to go into its records to find evidence in behalf of the claim against the government.

The senate passed the Blaine resolution with practically no discussion.

To meet the objections of those who felt that the government should not "give away its case" to somebody who might prosecute claims against it, Rep. William H. Stafford of Milwaukee and Fiorello H. La Gurdia of New York prepared amendments to the resolution to permit the head of each government concerned to lay down the regulations governing the Wisconsin attorney general's search of the records and to withhold records. This, they argued, would protect the government's side.

Jenkins Objects

First Rep. Jenkins objected because he thought the United States attorney general had reported unfavorably upon it. When he found this was not so, he vaguely explained that the resolution was too general because it did not specify what department, and then too specific because it would allow the attorney general of only one state such a privilege, and then, after Reps. Schneider, LaGuardia, and Stafford had argued with him for some time, Rep. Jenkins objected, forsooth, because "this bill will have no chance to pass the other body" when, as a matter of fact, it had already passed the senate and Rep. Stafford had duly informed him that it had passed the senate.

It appears that the reality is that Rep. Jenkins had determined to object to it, and when each of his reasons for objecting had been demolished, he just objected and thus blocked passage of the bill until the next session of Congress.

Meanwhile, the Wisconsin Indians' will go uninvestigated except insofar as the Interior department cooperates with the state of Wisconsin.

State Maintained 20,000 Children, Board Points Out

Expended $2,225,751 Last Year to Carry Out Project, Report Shows

Madison —(AP)—Wisconsin maintained 20,092 children under 16 years of age in their own homes during 1931 at a cost of $2,225,751.40 under the "aid to dependent children" law, the state board of control said in a preliminary report today.

This was an increase of 21.4 per cent, or $392,552.48 over expenditures for the same purpose in 1930, due primarily the board said, to the widespread industrial depression.

The number of families in which the 20,000 children were maintained was 8,058, which was 1,006 more than in 1930. The increase in the number of children was 1,904.

Wisconsin counties bore the entire expense of 2¼ millions, except for $26,792 paid by the state. The state appropriation for this purpose was $30,000 but this was reduced $3,208 because of 20 state-at-large families cared for in 1931.

The board's audit showed further that 2,108 new families were granted aid during the year, 3,715 old pensions were continued, 346 cases were increased, 821 were decreased and 1,068 cases were discontinued.

In Outagamie-co 651 children were cared for at a total cost of $57,517.89, of which amount the state gave aid for $688.63. The figures for adjacent counties of the number of children cared for, the total cost and the amount of state aid are: Brown-co, 711 children, $82,629 total, $989.12 state; Calumet-co, 86 children, $7,251.50 total, $87.30 state; Waupaca-co, 209 children, $18,106 total, $217.97 state; Winnebago-co, 413 children, 45,870.38 total, $552.20 state.

Must Measure Fruit Juices to Determine Amount of U. S. Tax

Besides cooking eggs and spinach, washing piles of cups, and moping table tops, restaurant workers must now figure out the amount of lemon or orange juice squeezed into lemonade and orange drinks during the day. Under the new revenue bill there is a two-cent on a gallon tax on all unfermented fruit juice, whether served in their natural state or mixed with sugar and water. The only method of ascertaining the amount used is measuring the juices in their natural state.

Frederick Peterson, 40, town of Royalton farmer, Waupaca-co, killed himself shortly after noon Saturday in the Catholic cemetery at Waupaca by shooting himself in the throat with a shotgun. In his automobile, with which he drove to the cemetery, authorities found notes addressed to his wife and to Sheriff Arthur Steenbock in which he pointed out that his act was caused by ill health and financial reverses.

In a recent conversation with his brother-in-law, William Schmidt, at New London, Peterson hinted at suicide. When he was missed Saturday morning a search was started immediately.

Survivors include the widow; four children, Derol, Evelyn, Ilene and LeRoy; his mother, at Weyauwega; three brothers, William, New London, Fred and Carl, Weyauwega; and three sisters, Mrs. Natalie Long, Nebraska, Mrs. Elizabeth Failks and Mrs. Peter Hanson, Waupaca. Sell Inspects Barley Fields for Pedigrees

About 12 inspections of barley fields were made last week by Gus Sell, county agent, for farmers who are planning to have their crops certified as pedigreed next fall. In order to meet certification requirements it is necessary that barley fields be inspected officially between "heading out" and harvesting time. These inspections are to determine trueness to variety, presence of weeds, etc. Following threshing, further samples are taken before certification is made. Mr. Sell said that now also is the time to make inspections of other grains. He urges farmers who desire to certify their seed to get in touch with him so the inspections can be made at once.

Keep Supply of Water Available for Animals

A jar of drinking water within easy reach at all hours of the day and night would do much to keep dogs in a pleasant frame of mind during these hot days, local veterinarians point out. Dogs and horses are just as hot in fact body temperatures are much higher than their masters on hot days, they say, and they would appreciate cold drinks of water frequently.

Youngsters are warned against frolicking too much with their pet dogs during the hottest part of the day. A dog never refuses to play, but if left alone he would seek a shady spot and sprawl on the cool ground during hot spells.

Meat or heavy food once a day is all a dog should get at any time, the dog doctor says, but especially is this true in the summer time. The dog's food should be largely liquid, something easily digested.

Dogs are easily overcome with the heat. One thus afflicted seems exhausted, and a regurging from his stomach may cause a sort of froth about the mouth. Cold applications to the head or head and spine will usually revive him.

Cats and work horses should be given special attention also during the summer. If the cat has consumed a great deal of milk or water it is less likely to succumb to any poison it may run into in its mouse-catching pursuits. Horses working in the field should be watered in mid-morning and mid-afternoon.

Socialist Meet Attended by 25

Police Objection to Gathering Withdrawn When Meeting Place Is Changed

Only about 25 persons attended the Socialist street meeting held on the boulevard in Soldier-sq. Saturday evening at which Carl Minkley, Milwaukee, state organizer for the party, and Eugene McStroll, Milwaukee, representative of the Young People's Socialist league, were the speakers. About half of those in the audience were fellow Socialists who accompanied the two Milwaukee men to Appleton.

The meeting Saturday evening was held despite refusal of Police Chief George T. Prim to give permission for the session on the city hall steps. Chief Prim said this morning he refused permission to hold the meeting on the city hall steps because a crowd there would have interfered with traffic. When the group decided to move to the boulevard in Soldier-sq. the chief said, his objections were withdrawn.

Arrangements for the meeting here were made by Roland Beyer and Wilmer Elworth, Kaukauna students, members of the Kaukauna local of the Socialist party.

CHIROPRACTIC NOT EXPENSIVE

In the fall of 1895 Dr. D. D. Palmer then a magnetic healer discovered a new principle, namely Chiropractic. Chiropractic was born of two theories; first, that a vertebra in the spinal column could be subluxated and could be adjusted by hand; second, that this subluxation could interfere with an abstract mental impulse flow of energy, and when the vertebra was adjusted, it restored the flow of energy between brain and body. Health will be the natural consequence. Then there was introduced a specially built thermo-couple heat detector called Neurocalometer. This instrument locates for the Chiropractor using it the impinged nerves, and then by our check reading after the adjustment is given, it proves to us whether the adjustment was given scientifically and correctly. It guides the Chiropractor using this instrument to the proper vertebra and to the release of the impinged nerve, it proves the Science of Chiropractic to be correct.

Then came the Spinograph or Xray. It was first introduced into our ranks to prove that the segments of the backbone could be and were out of alignment before an adjustment, and could be and were realigned after an adjustment. Every man, woman and child should have their spine analyzed with the Neurocalometer to determine whether or not there should be any corrections made. You have heard the slogan "that a stitch in time saves nine". Chiropractic Health Service is not expensive.

A Course of 24 Office Calls or Adjustments with Neurocalometer Service is $25.00. For Cases requiring a shorter period of Adjustments a Course of 12 Office Calls or Adjustments is $15.00. Single Office Calls $2.00. However if you wish to consult me regarding your health problem there will be no charge for same.

Move Postoffice To New Building During Weekend

First Mail Dispatched From New Quarters Sunday Afternoon

The United States banner flew from the mast on top of the new federal postoffice building this morning as the office was opened for business in its new quarters at 8 o'clock. The postoffice lobby was opened to the public at 7 o'clock yesterday morning.

The transfer from the old postoffice building on N. Oneida-st was started Saturday and by this morning everything was in readiness, according to Postmaster Emmery Greunke. Some records and equipment were moved on various occasions last week, and various distribution cases and lock boxes were labeled about two weeks ago.

Although everything is in readiness in the office, it will probably take about a week or two for employes to adjust themselves to their new environment, Mr. Greunke stated. The laborious task of moving a postoffice was more complicated than expected, he said. In order that there will be no interruptions in the movement of the mails, it is necessary that employes first acquaint themselves with the new facilities.

Dispatch Last Mail

The last mail in the old postoffice was dispatched at 1 o'clock Sunday morning for southbound Chicago and Northwestern train No. 102, after which the old office was locked up. What disposition is to be made of the old building has not yet been decided by postal department officials. Mr. Greunke is now awaiting word from officials at Washington, D. C.

Box mail was transferred from the old postoffice to the new building early Sunday morning, and by 7 o'clock it was available to box holders. Due to the fact that many box holders have boxes with new numbers there was a little confusion early this morning. Some people forgot their numbers, while others forgot keys.

The first mail to be dispatched from the new office was closed at 4:30 yesterday afternoon. It included airmail and hundreds of special pieces for stamp collectors and others interested in having mail cancelled for the first time in the new office. Although it was originally planned to "run" the "first batch" through the machine Sunday noon, plans were changed to 4:30 because according to regular dispatching schedules, there is no provisions for noon mail, Mr. Greunke said.

Session Most Important in Peace Periods

Much Important Legislation Enacted During Seven-Month Term

Washington —(P)— The 72nd congress, reaching the end of its seven-month long session, Saturday rounded out an unparallelled record of peacetime legislative achievement.

From its start last December troubled times directed the congressional course, and with but two important exceptions, they dictated every major act written into the statutes. A giant emergency program for relief, national and international, to meet exigencies of world economic disturbance likened to war, was the session's chief contribution to history.

In the main the programs thus wrought was a bi-partisan one advanced by the president, Herbert Hoover It was enacted by coalition effort which confounded forecasters who had seen in the even political balance of both house and senate between Republicans and Democrats nothing but promise of chaos. The non-partisanship displayed did not until late in the session give way on any great scale to political action and even this was not in the end allowed to block the reconstructive achievement.

The congress opened wide the national purse to relieve industrial, financial, agricultural and human distress. Simultaneously it reduced appropriations in an amount estimated by its leaders at in excess of one billion dollars from the year before, roughly one-fifth of that total.

Budget Efforts

Scored indelibly in the record of the session were the budget-balancing endeavors that reached out to gather more than a billion dollars in new taxes and which cut, the while, this huge slice of the government's cost.

Throughout, congress was troubled by proposals for abandoning the familiar road of financial practice in favor of currency expansion or inflation on a billionaire scale. These climaxed in the appearance at the capitol door of 20,000 veterans of the World war, clamoring for an immediate payment of $2,400,000,000, the yet unpaid and not due balances on the compensation certificates given them for military service.

Though the bonus seekers clung on to the final day, though their proposal swept through the house on overwhelming vote, it was crushed by the senate. In some such manner each of the less conservative plans was dropped by the wayside.

The demand for relaxation or repeal of prohibition, risen to new heights, dogged the congress' steps. Liquor proposals of wide diversity came up time and again, but though their sponsors showed gains not one of their measures passed either house. The legislators took the liquor issue home with them, expecting it to be fought out largely in November's elections.

Early Cooperation

The cooperative spirit which bound a Democratic house and Republican senate in remarkable unity began with the foreign debt moratorium, approved soon after John N. Garner of Texas, was elected first Democratic speaker of the house in a dozen years. It swept through the gigantic Reconstruction Finance corporation and a $1,118,000,000 tax bill.

Looming huge in the session's output was the $2,122,000,000 relief bill completed just before the final gavel rap. Over this new law developed an open break between Garner, Democratic vice presidential nominee, and Hoover, Republican presidential nominee, hinging on loans to individuals by the Reconstruction corporation. The president vetoed individual loans, but accepted full publicity for all the corporation's advances, placing responsibility on congress and upon the Democratic leaders.

The break framed an issue for the political campaign.

Little time was wasted in sending to President Hoover the debt moratorium announced by the chief executive six months previously. It cut off $267,000,000 of foreign payments for a year, and congress coupled with it an announcement there should be no further moratoriums or revisions.

Reconstruction Body

Next was set up the huge Reconstruction corporation. With $2,000,000,000 at its command, this government agency was directed to fill, with limits, the credit needs of banks, railroads and agriculture.

In the final relief bill this agency was given an increase in funds to $3,800,000,000, including a provision for advances to states needing aid to stem human distress.

The government also gave help by releasing 85,000,000 bushels of wheat and 500,000 bales of cotton from board stores to the Red Cross for distribution to the unemployed.

Early in the session, congress voted $100,000,000 to strengthen the Federal Farm Loan banks. Somewhat later it came to the aid of a Federal Reserve system burdened by foreign gold demands, and in the Glass-Steagall emergency act it released new reserves.

The budget-balancing program brought from the ways and means committee a billion-dollar revenue bill. It was rewritten on the house floor after a bitter struggle which eliminated a general manufacturers' sales tax.

In the senate too, the sales tax was rejected. Income taxes were boosted higher and additional revenue was sought in other directions as the treasury deficit mounted toward the $3,000,000,000 mark.

Slash Federal Costs

Following the tax law to the White House was a national economy measure that reduced government salaries and other outlays, cutting over $150,000,000 from federal expenses. Appropriations, too, felt the economy pressure, and the regular annual supply bills were slashed far below the current year's allowance.

Outside the emergency program congress disposed of two legislative gray-beards. A constitutional amendment to abolish the lame-duck session of congress was submitted to the states. Legislation to prohibit federal injunctions in labor disputes became law.

Both houses passed a Democratic tariff bill to restore the flexible adjusting powers to congress, but it died on an executive veto. This measure was tacitly admitted to have been designed as a ballot box issue. The house voted overwhelmingly for Philippine independence, but the senate failed to act.

Likewise Muscle Shoals legislation, another familiar stand-by, failed to get through. The house also adopted a bank-guaranty bill which the senate did not reach.

Buy Oil Distributor From Eau Claire Firm

An oil distributor was purchased Saturday afternoon by the Outagamie-co highway committee from the Rosholt company of Eau Claire for $4,000. This firm was among seven which submitted bids on distributors to the committee last week The committee also decided Saturday to purchase a second hand boiler for $250 from the Kuester Machine company of Clintonville. This equipment will be used in improving Highway 54 between Seymour and Shiocton, as well as in other county road work.

point to a few brilliant accomplishments by him, but his friends say the station he reached in world affairs provided a fitting measure for the attainments and abilities recognized so readily by those with whom he came in contact.

Avoided Friction

He devoted himself first of all to avoiding friction of any kind in all of his official relations, and permeating his whole life was a certain and definite plan to ever cement closer the friendly connections between the great republics of the old and new worlds. A knowledge that he had gained the desired end seemed always to be compensation enough for him. He once said he never boasted of a diplomatic victory as he had no desire to add to the discomfiture of the other party.

M. Jusserand had enviable relations of personal friendship, particularly with the American presidents from Roosevelt to Coolidge. Early in the administration of Roosevelt, the ambassador, then newly arrived, developed an intimacy with the chief executive seldom equalled in diplomatic annals. He became a partner of Mr. Roosevelt in the latter's many rigorous pastimes, almost a daily competitor in the games of the "tennis cabinet", and a companion in the trying pedestrian feats in which Mr. Roosevelt so often indulged.

Only high American officials of those days are able to properly calculate the effect of this intimacy on the delicate negotiations for transfer of the French rights in the Panama Canal to America. Whether it was coincidence, history records a more promising aspect in the negotiations immediately after M. Jusserand interested himself in them. The good footing established by the ambassador continued through the administrations of Taft, Wilson and Harding, and through more than a year of the presidency of Coolidge.

Relieved in 1924

It was in 1924, at the moment France was making her first overtures toward payment of, her war debt to the United States, that the newly-constituted Herriot regime at Paris appointed Emile Daeschner as ambassador to Washington. M. Jusserand, who had held the post since 1902, through vicissitudes which included the grave difficulties of a world war, was a much disappointed man but he remained philosophically loyal to his government. When he sailed from New York on Jan. 28, 1925, he said in response to a request for some expression of his parting emotions:

"The most important years of my life I have spent in your country. I leave my duties now in the hands of my successor, and depart full of love for Americans and your America. M Daeschner is an upright and sincere man, a diplomat and a thinker."

Then, with that twinkle in his eye which had helped win him a multitude of friends of this side of the Atlantic, he added:

"And so am I."

Relief Measure Holds Interest In Badger State

Many Features of Bill May Bring Direct Aid To Wisconsin

BY RUBY A. BLACK
(Post-Crescent Washington Correspondent)

Washington—The final act of the bewildered and feverish first session of the 72nd congress provided more of local interest to Wisconsin than any other measure passed by a session which had little time to devote to local and sectional measures and which so cut general appropriation that local projects have been seriously curtailed.

The emergency relief bill, finally agreed upon by both Houses of Congress with the full approval of the President, except for the monthly reports on loans made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to financial institutions, contains many features which may bring direct relief to Wisconsin unemployed or jobs for Wisconsin jobless.

Analysis of the provisions of this bill, which changed so many times, reveals the authority given the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the President to proceed with direct and indirect aid for the Badger State's depressed.

Can Seek Loan

First, the state may, if it wishes, apply for some of the $300,000,000 provided for loans to states to give direct relief or jobs. Not more than 15 per cent can go to any state. The money may be paid back directly or may be paid back out of future disbursements to the state for federal road aid.

Then, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation can lend to the State of Wisconsin, or to any city in it, or any other political subdivision or public agency to finance projects previously authorized by federal, state, or municipal law, which are self-liquidating, such as toll bridges, docks, tunnels, waterworks, and similar projects which eventually pay for themselves. The corporation may buy state or municipal bonds for such projects.

If any Wisconsin city should wish to abolish any slums, if any Wisconsin city has slums, its citizens might form a corporation to reconstruct such areas and provide housing for families of low income, the state regulating the rents, charges, capital structure, and rate of return, and such a corporation might borrow money from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to finance this work.

Private corporations building or replacing self-liquidating bridges, tunnels, docks, viaducts, waterworks, canals, and markets, devoted to public use could borrow for this construction work.

Private limited dividend corporations formed in Wisconsin to protect and develop forests and other renewable natural resources, regulated by the state or a political subdivision, could borrow money. Of course, under the $300,000,000 loan provision, the state could also borrow for reforestation work.

The state, any county, or any city could borrow to build railroad or highway bridges which are to pay for themselves partly by tolls, rents, fees, and partly by taxes. Aid for Wisconsin's grade-crossing elimination program might be obtained under this clause if the local program meets these conditions.

Farm Aid Available

Agricultural organizations might borrow to finance the orderly marketing of farm products and their marketing in foreign countries. Loans might also be made to regional agricultural credit corporations, one in each of the 12 federals land bank districts with a paid-up capital of not less than $3,000,000, half subscribed by private interests and half by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Of the $322,224,000 public works section of the bill, only the $136,000,000 for roads is mandatory. Of this $136,000,000, the federal aid highway system is to get $120,000,000, and Wisconsin would share in this. Wisconsin, because of its numerous federal forest lands and its Indian reservations, might get some of the $16,000,000 provided for roads and trails and bridges in national park and forests, Indian reservations, and other federal reservations.

If the Secretary of the Treasury finds that the money is available or can be obtained on reasonable terms, $30,000,000 might be spent on river and harbor projects. More than $2,000,000 worth of additional improvements to Wisconsin waterways have been approved by the army engineers for rivers and harbors, including large improvements to the Green Bay, Sheboygan, Kewaunee, Ashland, and Two Rivers harbors and including work on the Upper Mississippi 9-foot channel. Smaller improvements to other Wisconsin waterways have been approved.

Some of the $500,000 for air navigation facilities, the $350,000 for lighthouse tenders and light vessels, and the $2,869,000 for other aids to navigation might go to Lake Michigan waterways if the President authorizes commencement of any of this work.

For Public Buildings

If the President, upon advice of the Secretary of the Treasury, should direct the commencement of any of the $100,000,000 of public buildings authorized in this relief bill, the following Wisconsin projects would receive consideration and those presenting the greatest need and the greatest savings in rents might be started, first consideration being given to places where federal offices are in rented quarters the leases of which will expire on or before July 1, 1934:

Green Bay, $550,000;
Fond du Lac, $270,000;
Waukesha, $245,000;
West Bend, $105,000;
Oconomowoc, $90,000;
Clintonville, Port Washington, Plymouth and Rice Lake, $85,000 each;
Berlin, Cudahy, Elkhorn, Hartford Kewaunee, Lake Geneva, Shawano, Stoughton, and Sturgeon Bay, $80,000 each;
Edgerton, Jefferson, Kaukauna, Ladysmith, New London, Richland Center, and Waupaca, $75,000 each;
Reedsburg and Whitewater, $70,000 each.
Eau Claire extension, $50,000.
Chippewa Falls extension, $10,000.

Of these the following now have no federal buildings: Berlin, Clintonville, Cudahy, Edgerton, Elkhorn, Hartford, Jefferson, Kaukauna, Kewaunee, Ladysmith, Lake Geneva, New London, Oconomowoc, Plymouth, Portage, Port Washington, Reedsburg, Rice Lake, Richland Center, Shawano, Stoughton, Sturgeon Bay, Waupaca, West Bend, and Whitewater. They might receive first consideration unless the government is also rendering quarters in the cities which have inadequate federal buildings.

All Are Approved

All these buildings have been approved and estimated for by the treasury and post office departments.

Of course, under the original Reconstruction Finance Corporation act, 112 Wisconsin financial institutions received aid up to June 30, including 90 banks and 22 building and loan associations.

Congress passed an amendment to river and harbor law permitting the government to go on with the Alma dam, part of the canalization of the Upper Mississippi, which had been held up by a court injunction obtained by a railroad.

It also passed the LaFollette-Boileau bill to let each member of the Menominee Indian tribe have $50 out of the tribal funds for winter relief.

Open Bids on Pipe at Meeting of Commission

Bids on a carload of 6-inch cast iron water pipe and 2,000 feet of 13-inch main were opened and tabulated at a meeting of the city water commission at the city hall Saturday morning. An application for a position was received from James W. Watson and ordered placed on file. Other routine business matters also were discussed.

Denies He Drove Cycle While Drunk

Trial of Mike Grissman, Kaukauna, Is Set for Thursday

Mike Grissman, Kaukauna, pleaded not guilty when arraigned in municipal court before Judge Theodore Berg this morning on a charge of drunken driving. It is charged Grissman drove his motorcycle while intoxicated. Trial of the case was set for Thursday and Grissman was released on bonds of $100.

The Kaukauna man was arrested about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon by Harold Engerson, motorcycle officer at Kaukauna, after the latter had followed him to his home. The officer charged he was driving in an erratic manner that threatened other motorists on the street. Grissman was held at the police station in Kaukauna until this morning, when he was brought into court by J. E. McFadden, assistant police chief at Kaukauna.

Here are Three Approved Ways to Prepare Tomatoes

Find Yield This Year Is of Excellent Quality and Prices are Low

Whether or not it is "time to fall in love" you'll have to decide for yourself, but certainly tomatoes not only are cheaper but they are of wonderful quality this summer and even newlyweds almost could live on them.

Funny—in grandmother's day, most people thought tomatoes were not good to eat, poison in fact, and they were grown largely as curiosities. Today all health authorities agree that tomatoes are of prime importance in the promotion of health.

Few persons lose their appetite for raw tomatoes. Always they are acceptable in the salad. There are any number of ways to prepare them. Here are a few ways which have the approval of the United State department of agriculture.

Baker Tomatoes: Wash tomatoes, remove the stem ends, cut in half, place in a shallow greased baking dish, cover with buttered bread crumbs seasoned with salt and pepper. And a little water to keep the tomatoes from sticking to the dish. Bake in a moderate oven for 30 minutes, or until the tomatoes are tender, and the crumbs brown.

Fried Tomatoes: Use six or eight firm tomatoes, one egg, one tablespoon cold water, finely sifted bread crumbs, salt and pepper, and one tablespoon chopped parsley. Wash the tomatoes, remove a thin piece from the stem end, and cut the tomatoes into slices about one-half inch thick. Beat the egg slightly, add water, dip the tomatoes in this, and roll in the bread crumbs which have been seasoned to taste with salt and pepper. Allow the coated tomatoes to dry out somewhat before frying. Heat fat in heavy skillet, place the coated tomatoes in the hot fat, brown on one side, then turn carefully, and reduce the temperature so that the tomatoes will have sufficient time to cook before browning. Lift from skillet to a hot platter, garnish with chopped parsley, and serve at once.

Baked Stuffed Tomatoes: Use six large firm tomatoes, six strips of bacon, two tablespoons chopped parsley, one tablespoon chopped onion, one cup dry bread crumbs, one-quarter teaspoon celery seed, one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, and one cup buttered bread crumbs. Wash the tomatoes, remove thin slice from the stem end, and carefully scoop out the pulp so that the tomato shells will not be broken. Fry the bacon until crisp, remove from the pan, and break the bacon into small pieces. Add the parsley and onions to the fat, cook for a few minutes, add the cup of dry bread crumbs, celery seed, salt, pepper, crisped bacon, and tomato pulp. Stir until well mixed and add more salt if necessary. Fill the tomato cups with this mixture, cover the tops with the buttered crumbs, place in a shallow baking dish, and bake in a moderate oven for 45 to 60 minutes, or until the tomatoes are tender and the crumbs are brown. Serve from the baking dish.

Appleton Man Slugged On Head at Green Bay

Harley Lundgram, 519 S. Douglas-st, Appleton, was slugged over the head with a bottle about midnight Saturday at Green Bay in what police there believed was an attempt to rob him. The occurrence took place as Lundgram was walking along the street at the Twelfth-ave crossing with the Green Bay and Western railroad tracks. Lundgram told police that he believed a man, whose name he knew as "Lefty", attacked him. He said he met Lefty and a companion a short time previous in Union park. Several nights before there had been a similar occurrence in this vicinity. Police believed the man who attacked Lundgram fled when he became frightened. Lundgram suffered a minor scalp wound.

'Remarks' Of Congressmen Stuff Record

This Is Season When Solons "Extend" Their Sayings for Publication

BY RUBY A. BLACK
Post-Crescent Washington Correspondent

Washington—This is the season of the year when the appendix of the congressional record is filled with campaign documents known as "extensions of remarks." The back of the record fills up mightily during the last fortnight of a session in an election year, and one or two special appendixes are published after congress adjourns to accommodate the printing desires of congressmen seeking reelection.

Rep. James A. Frear of Hudson, having already gone home, some time before congress adjourned, has already put in his "extension" in, and it is a defense of the relief measures passed by the congress. Of course, it was written and published before the final emergency relief measure was passed.

But the choice part of Rep. Frear's "extension" is his recognition of the fact that the "ins" are going to have a hard time during the current campaign and his inclusion of two highly complimentary letters written to him, one from Sen. Lynn J. Frazier of Hoople, N. D., and the other from John A. Simpson, president of the Farmers' Educational and Cooperative union of America.

Sen. Frazier said in his letter, "You have proved yourself to be a real representative of the people," and "You are to be congratulated on your success in helping defeat the sales tax," and "the progressive voters of your state and of the nation appreciate the good work you have done," and ends, "Wishing you success in the coming primary election."

Rep. Frear's major effort in "helping defeat the sales tax" consisted of putting in the Congressional Record one 19-page extension of remarks in opposition and one 26-page extension, a total of 45 pages at a cost averaging more than $50 a page, since much of it was in small type. These cost the government more than $2,250 to print. They were made up chiefly of letters, statements, excerpts from old hearings, many of them from speeches made long ago by Rep. Frear.

He had sent a letter to his colleagues calling attention to his "extension" on the sales tax. No one has yet been discovered who read all Rep. Frear's comments and quotations on the sales tax.

The Hudson congressman has been particularly active this year, speaking briefly and extending his remarks or merely extending his remarks on practically everything before the House of Representatives.

* * *

In the "extension" just published, he stoutly defended Congress, said that only during the war has he, in nearly 20 years' service in the House, seen a Congress work so hard and with less partizanship as during the session just ended.

He listed among the relief measures the moratorium, the $100 000,000 fund authorizing extension of installments on mortgages held under the federal farm loan act, the $2,000,000,000 Reconstruction Finance Corporation to save banks, the Glass-Steagall banking measure which was supposed to extend credit by $700 000,000, the $50,000,000 credit for agricultural credit corporations (increased under the relief bill just passed.) 40 000,000 bushels of government wheat given to the hungry, which, he said, helped 65 000 Wisconsin families the 50,000,000 bushels later added (it was really 45,000,000, for the senate increased the House's second 40,000.000 to 50,000,000 and they compromised on 45,000.000 bushels,) new public works, and other measures which, when Rep. Frear wrote his extension, had been passed by the House but not the Senate, and some of which have not been enacted.

* * *

But Simpson's letter to Frear is also of interest. It thanks him for assistance given the measures indorsed by the farmers' union. They have not become law. It says: 'I have watched your record in Congress for nearly 2 years. I assure you that I approve of practically every position you have taken on public questions, including war times and all, during that 20 years," and it ends with the hope that he will be successful in both the primary and the general election so "the farmers (may) have your services in Congress another two years."

There is a curious defensiveness about the Frear extension," particularly in the following paragraph:

"These letters, I submit, justify my own estimate of sincere efforts of Congress to measure up to the many demands made upon it. That it met all demands would be idle to assert, but in response to savage and easily misunderstool motives for criticism by certain metropolitan papers I suggest it is easy to write scathing attacks in the safe confines of an editorial chamber, which if subjected to exposure in public debate would be rejected by the average auditor."

* * *

This is also the time of year when the tributes to congressmen who have died are published in the appendix, later to be collected in a memorial volume for distribution among the families and friends of the eulogized congressmen

Many eulogies of the late Rep Henry Allen Cooper of Racine, who was the dean of the House of Representatives when he died a year and a half ago, have already been published.

His successor, Rep Thomas R. Amlie of Elkhorn, in his tribute described the dramatic occasion when Rep Cooper presented the minority plank at the 1924 national convention in Cleveland.

Rep. John M. Nelson of Madison sketched the high points of the more than half century Rep. Cooper spent in public life

Rep. Frear, who sat at his side as he died, described his dramatic legislative battles and achievements.

Rep. Hubert H Peavey of Washburn told of his "career dedicated to public service which stands out in the history of American public life."

Rep James H Sinclair of North Dakota spoke of his tall, erect stature, his handsomeness, his "leonine expression," and his "shining record of achievement for the cause of humanity," and ended, "If there was ever a valiant defender of the Constitution of the United States, such a defender was Henry Allen Cooper. His every legislative act was in furtherance of the principles of that great governmental document."

Several of them spoke of his last speech in the House, when he made a patriotic oration in favor of naming the great avenue running from the Washington Monument to the Lincoln Memorial and the Arlington Memorial bridge "Constitution Avenue." His resolution to give this name to the broad ceremonial avenue was the last legislative act which bears his name, and today in Washington the magnificent boulevard stands as a memorial to him and a tribute to the Constitution.

Practically all spoke of his one defeat, resulting from his vote against the war, and of his work for justice to the Filipinos.

* * *

Rep Nelson also put in the Record a tribute to the late Speaker Nicholas Longworth, calling him "a happy composite" of astute politician, scholar, and lover of art, literature, and music, as well as eulogizing his legislative career, his courtesy, his diligence, his sense of humor, and his "able leadership."

Library Has Books On Both Candidates For President's Job

Although the hot weather may have pin-pricked the bubble of interest in the two presidential nominees, persons wishing to "read up" on the lives and characters of Hoover and Roosevelt will find plenty of material in the Appleton Public library.

There are a number of books on Hoover, and while there are no volumes on Roosevelt, there are hundreds of magazine articles.

Books about the Republican nominee are "This Man Hoover" by Earl Reeves; "Herbert Hoover—The Man and His Work," by V. L. Kellogg; "Hoover in 1932," "Mirrors in Washington," and "A Citizen of the World" by M. R. Parkman.

SKIRMISH AND STRATAGEM

In due time the earth will tremble with the movements of our giant political armies of which the recent and present contacts are but the slight skirmishes that presage the approaching crash and useful only as each feels out the mettle of the other and essays to measure the elusive element of public opinion.

Mr. Roosevelt in true democratic fashion smashed precedent and formality to smithereens with his trip and speech to the convention and then betook himself to remote places on the salt water to prepare plans and permit "Give-'em-Everything" Garner to try out his hand at a dashing military foray. Instead of using his Uhlans to locate the enemy and draw his fire, the would-be Speaker-Vice-President attempted a major military operation, a procedure far beyond either his capacity or training and was forced to retreat under heavy casualties. He lost part of his ammunition train, a few field kitchens and considerable prestige to say not a word about dignity.

When the President observed this reckless officer expose himself in broad daylight, he had a right to conclude that it was the best piece of luck he had seen since that miserable March day when he was acclaimed chief executive of a nation bent upon " a more equitable distribution of wealth."

A veto, like the headman's axe, is a sharp and cutting affair, sure to fix public attention. It always packs a punch, and now above all times, is read with breathless care. Only the poorest sort of generalship can account for the bungle that gave Mr. Hoover an opening for which he had strained his eyes these many weary weeks.

He excoriated the attempt to have the Reconstruction Corporation make loans far and wide, saying:

> "The sole limitation under the bill is that loans shall be secured and that the borrowers shall not have been able to obtain loans from private institutions. This at once throws upon the corporation all the doubtful loans in the United States. . . .
> "The organization would be constantly subjected to conspiracies and raids of predatory interests, individuals and private corporations. Huge losses and great scandals must inevitably result. It would mean the squandering of hundreds of millions of public funds to be ultimately borne by the taxpayer."

But worse than even that, the President with concise, almost harsh, language pointed out that Congress, in its usual careless fashion, ordered the giving of the money but failed to provide enough funds for all its appropriations. In this respect it is not unlike the wag who enjoyed writing a long testament bequeathing fat sums to all acquaintances but failed to leave sufficient estate to pay the undertaker for his funeral.

Mr. Roosevelt needs a few field marshals. Good material is available to him and he needs use it. Mr. Garner may do on the stump but not in practical maneuvers.

And whom will the President use in similar responsible positions? Senator Borah and Vice President Curtis carried the brunt four years ago. But the former is sulking in his tent and the latter can never be permitted to go over the same ground again. It was Mr. Curtis who opened each speech with a benevolent smile and statement—"Ladies and Gentlemen, you are enjoying just another year of Republican prosperity," and then like a big-hearted Santa Claus this spell-binder accepted the shrieking applause as his honest due for representing the only political party America ever had that manufactured prosperity just as the jolly baker makes pies for the happiness of all.

But public memory is short.

CROWDING GRASSHOPPERS AND HUMANS

In many respects certain species of insects are reputed to have far outstripped man in the march toward perfection in social organization. The ant world affords a notable example of a high state of mass cooperation, communal efficiency and perfect division of labor which man thus far has been unable even to approach in comparative measure.

Yet the human race may take comfort in the fact that all of the insects are not putting it to shame by the vaunted perfection of their civilization. A scientist at Cornell university has discovered that grasshoppers have at least one attribute characteristic of the human specie. It has to do with mob psychology.

Grasshoppers, it seems, are harmless until assembled in mobs. But crowded together they become voracious and destructive beasts. The scientist asserts that "they get excited, body temperature rises, they jump immensely further, eat more, their shapes finally change and then their colors." They become the devastating locust of Bible fame—the same grasshopper plague that is today laying waste to extensive areas in our Middlewest.

When separated from his mob environment the locust again reverts to its original character, peaceful and harmless and content to live the life of a sane and normal hopper.

Thus the grasshopper, despite its insect nature, still retains attributes distressingly human. Man's mob spirit often appears with the same destructive results. Crowding excites him and may readily change his color from white to red, or from blue to yellow. In his mob rampages the carefully cultivated crops of years of social progress may be obliterated. And when it comes to high, wide and handsome jumping, no grasshopper has an edge on the genus politician in convention duly assembled.

"SOAK THE RICH"

In a recent article in the "Saturday Evening Post" F. Britten Austin has performed a service of some consequence by gathering together analogies in history reaching back twenty-five centuries having to do with the fascinating cry in many quarters like unto that one of Praxagora of old: "It must not be allowed that one should keep slaves and another not a single servant," with the promise that his system would fix it so "no one need to work any more; your only concern will be to scent yourself before going on a spree"—an early forerunner of "Soak the Rich."

Mr. Austin shows the remarkable parallel in political arguments all through the ages, arguments that sound good and are only found flimsy and futile upon a careful observation of their treacherous reliability.

This is the argument, to quote Mr. Lansbury of the British Labour party: "The rich are still rich and they are trying to make you poorer. Their press says there is no fund from which your needs can be realized. That is a lie. The fund is there all right; it is in the pockets of the rich." An argument, it must be conceded that, to a poor man, seems meritorious. But when the rich were soaked for one thing too hard there was no longer capital available for adventurous enterprise. The very supply that had by its constant demand for labour helped create a shortage and, therefore, higher wages, was so completely cut off, stagnation ensued and the policy that soaked the rich, however necessarily, "took from the poor their daily bread."

Of the policy in England, Mr. Austin says:

> "No other country has ever put the slogan of 'soaking the rich' into such systematic and continuous operation. It has cost Britain the destruction of her basic industries and her world wide trade, reflected in an army of workless permanent for the past ten years. Fallacies are always fallacies. There has been no more magnificent example of killing and eating the geese that should supply the golden eggs."

"Soaking the rich" is not the mere policy of making them pay their way as they must. It is a policy of fierce and intentional discrimination where little regard for honesty in division of necessary taxation appears. Wastage too, on a huge scale, is generally added to the burden to please or appease noisy elements or hungry contractors.

It is a hard policy to combat because it is thought to affect the few, whereas it affects all in time. Its best antidote is to show the millions its utter futility and boomerang qualities. Workers will not for long support a policy that is dishonest, because they are not dishonest. Nor will they continue to support leaders whose only plea for help is an echo of Robin Hood's, any more than they will continue to respect management in their own employer that is wasteful, inept and heedless.

Opinions Of Others

EVADING THE LAW

In the old days young men studied law that they might know how to interpret and administer it. Now matriculants learn the law in order that they may know how to evade it—not so much in their own actions, save in a contributice sense—but that they may give service desired by a new and powerful species of clients. It is a new science, and a most subversive one.

A few years ago a literature of crime and sex was denied sale by book-shops and news dealers with the laudable object of preventing delinquency in youth. But the purveyors of these filthy prints soon discovered, with the assistance of mercenary and conscienceless attorneys, that the law did not specifically forbid the sale of such publications in other mercantile establishments. The result has been, therefore, directly in opposition to the intent of the legislation, and instead of the sales of pornographic books and pictures being obsoleted, they have rather been stimulated, for innumerable barber shops, cafes, railway stations, and other places of public resort, even in some cases, meat and grocery stores, proceeded to distribute these baleful products of degenerate minds with little attempt at secrecy.

If charged with the offence, a "good" advocate would soon win for them immunity.

A later instance is that of certain sinister advertising. Barred of the press by law, self-seeking vendors of discredited nostrums and pernicious doctrines soon found that the letter of the statute did not interdict their use of the radio or poster, or certain other methods of advertising, and so the beneficial results intended have been nullified in these respects also. The law too often is a farce—a sport set up to exercise attorneys' ingenuity.—La Suisse (Geneva, Switzerland).

Anyhoo, it's werra discouraging to come back to work and have to contemplate living through a summer like that of 1931. Still, the basement under the new building is both large and cool. Look for us there if the weatherman forgets to turn off the heat.

Just Folks

By Edgar A. Guest

THE WORK OF SUMMER

Comes summer to the world its work to do,
To bring fruition to the tiny seed;
To strew the earth with all that man may need;
To give the apple cheek its crimson hue
And the rich stores of golden grain renew;
To toil with patience and with certain speed
Without complaint o'er large or trivial deed,
And run in service here its brief course through.

I sometimes think that Summer seems to know
It shall not live to see its tasks complete.
It lays its glories gained at Autumn's feet,
And is content in having labored so,
As some tired father when his time is done,
Who leaves to those he loves the treasures won.

Looking Backward

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO
Monday, July 22, 1907

A marriage license had been issued to Ernest H. Bush, Neenah, and Catherine Barnes, Appleton.

The marriage of Edwin Van Dyke, Kaukauna, and Miss Mollie T. Flavin, Appleton, took place the previous Wednesday morning at St. Mary church, the Rev. Father Fitzmaurice performing the ceremony.

A number of friends from Appleton and Neenah surprised Louis Sorenson at his home on Atlantic-st the previous evening in honor of his birthday anniversary.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

ACID FOODS AND FOODS THAT PRODUCE ACID

A reader asks just what foods she should eat as she has been told by her Doctor that she has not enoug her doctor that she had not enough acid in her system.

Another reader says he has been troubled over a year by what his doctor says is too much alkali . . . and details some symptoms which do not belong in a health column. He asks if I will please give him a list of foods to reduce the alkaline excess.

A third has been able to eat all citrus fruits until the past year. Now the least bit of such fruit causes her to break out with large itching bunches. What can she do to correct this? Will I kindly tell her which foods form acid?

Still another customer requests lists of (1) acid foods, (2) starchy foods, and reveals no hints as to what he intends to do with them.

Well, now let's get down to brass tacks and no fooling. I know how fond people are of diet lists. Readers have harried me in season and out for more articles about diets and dieting. I suppose if I wanted to be accommodating I might copy out a few cut and dried diets, making trifling changes so the original authors could not say I lifted them in one piece, and distribute them to all and sundry. I am told it is a very popular game. But I'm not going to play it.

So in order to save space, time, labor and the good will of our customers, I'll set down here briefly all we know about this acid and alkaline business.

First, the most acid foods—citrus fruits—are among the best to oppose acidosis, to keep the blood alkaline, to prevent the urine from being too much acid.

Second, there is too much confusion in the popular mind about acidosis and the acidity of the gastric juice. The one has practically nothing to do with the other. Foods which increase the acidity of the stomach or decrease its acidity do not have any particular effect upon the reaction of the blood and tissues, as a rule.

Third, acidosis is always and solely, I believe, an effect of disease, never a cause of illness, and hence it is idle and futile for the layman to attempt to select foods which purport to prevent acidosis. Yes, I am aware certain fruit interests exploit the idea that liberal eating of certain fruits will prevent or cure acidosis, but in my judgment that's all baloney. At least I'd never accept or refuse any fruit on any such freak notion.

Well, that's there is about it. I mean, that's all we know.

Sorry, if you are disappointed in me, but I've done the best I could with a vexed question, and if you can bring any scientific evidence I have overlooked I'll be grateful to learn about it. Please spare me citations of what this and that near-doctor says. I like baloney, all right, but I prefer to slice my own.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Denatured Alcohol

Using alcohol to rub on throat. It seems to relieve soreness and get the "frog" out of my throat. But our druggist claims there is something in alcohol that may poison me if I inhale it freely. Is he crazy or am I? (Miss M. A. E.)

Answer—All alcohol sold without prescription is denatured (something added to prevent its safe use as a beverage) I think it is unwise to use denatured or bathing alcohol in any circumstance where it is likely to be inhaled.

Varicose Ulcer

Varicose ulcer five years. It has healed each summer, then broken open again. Now doctor wants to cut away old tissue around ulcer. . . . (H. C.

Answer—Often some such surgical treatment is necessary to permit complete healing.

Baby Doesn't Hold Head Up

Son 3 months old. We notice he doesn't hold his head up as other babies do . . . (Mrs. S. M.)

Answer—Normal baby makes first voluntary muscular efforts at age of 3 to 4 months. During the fourth month, as a rule, the baby begins to hold head erect if trunk is supported.

The Tinymites

By Hal Cochran

ALL of the circus folks laughed loud, and gathered in a watching crowd, to see the little Tinis crawl out of the great big net.

One fellow shouted, "My, oh my, you dropped down right out of the sky. I've seen a lot of strange things, but that is the strangest yet."

The Tinies all sat still a while and then each one began to smile. "Gee, we were lucky," Scouty said. "We dodged an awful mess.

" 'Twas well that net was right down here, or we'd have wrecked ourselves, I fear. From now on we had better stay upon the ground, I guess."

* * *

"Oh, no!" snapped Windy. "That's no fun! Just think of all the things we've done, and yet we all are here. I'll take all of the rides I can.

"But, come, let's get out of this net. All of the folks are cheering yet. We'll have to find the owner of the balloon and pa the man."

The owner heard the last remark and shouted, "Oh, you had your lark and now you can forget it. I have monstrous balloons galore.

"I'll keep the basket of the one in which you Tinies had your fun, but I don't want the gas bag. I won't use it any more."

* * *

When they were safely on the ground and lots of people gathered 'round, wee Duncy told them 'bout the bird that made the gas bag break.

Then all the Tinies ran into the tent, for something else to do. Soon Windy said, "I'll make you laugh until your sides will ache.

"That kicking mule, right over there, will kick a big ball in the air. Just watch him when I toss the ball right at his two back feet."

My goodness, 'twas a sight to see! The mule kept kicking constantly, and as the ball flew through the air, wee Scouty said, "That's neat."

A Bystander In Washington

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Chicago — Huey P. Long was a little slow in hitting his stride at the democratic national convention, but when he did he did it in a big way.

They all wanted to get a look at the Louisiana senator when they got to Chicago. That milling mob around the Congress hotel, convention headquarters, was asking about him. It was easy to pick him out in his white linens.

But Senator Huey wasn't a bit blustery—at least not so much as they expected. There was a reason. He was playing a cautious game to get his delegates seated on the convention floor.

But after he had succeeded in doing that, he began to warm up. From then on he was at his best. He really did some "kingfishing" for the crowd.

He Tells 'Em

When Walsh was made permanent chairman, for instance, he grabbed Louisiana's standard, jumped upon his chair and waved and shouted with all his power. When the Roosevelt delegation from Minnesota was being voted on, Long cried when Louisiana was called:

"Louisiana gives her 20 votes and wish we had more to give."

But it was around the party headquarters the night after he had won his contest that he did his spectacular work. He went on a visiting rampage to the various state delegations, telling all and sundry what he thought was the matter with the country.

Up to the resolutions committee door he went and knocked. He demanded 10 minutes to express his views on the party platform and got it. Then he had the mayor of New Orleans, his member on the committee, submit two planks.

One was to pledge the democratic party to have a leadership in congress not privately nor professionally obligated to interests inimical to the welfare of the general public.

The other was to pledge the party to undertake the fair distribution of wealth into the hands of all the people by taxation or such other laws as might be necessary.

They were taken under advisement.

A Hidden Dig

That first plank was believed aimed at senator Robinson of Arkansas, with whom Long has been fighting almost since he first entered the senate a few months ago. He has accused Robinson, the democratic leader, of being counsel for power companies.

Someone asked him if that was the purpose of his plank.

"If the cap fits Robinson, let him wear it," he snorted.

It has been a great time for the "Kingfish" in Chicago. If he has his way about it it will be a great convention for the "Kingfish."

If Congress really wants to get the bonus army to go home, it might try setting the ex-soldiers a good example.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY WILLIAM GAINES

New York — Staten Island ferry passengers who think those lads are hissing 'em are all wrong.

The young fellows are bootblacks, sneaking their little foot rests about the decks. They are not supposed to solicit business on board and interrogating prospective customers with the word "Shine?" is taboo. So they make those snake-like noises to call attention to their business, and when they get a job they keep one eye peeled for official interferers while they slap polish on shoes.

Maybe you can find some sort of boot-legging pun in that.

Olive oil is one of the fastest moving stocks handled by groceries in the Italian sections.

I dropped in at a small store on Second avenue, where they keep different grades of oil in four big tanks. It is drained off through spigots for the patrons, who bring their own bottles and cans.

It takes as much oil to float antipasto for a family of ten as it does to run a car from coast to coast.

In a shop next door, I found a hefty proprietor who sings grand opera arias while he weighs salami and carves cheese for fussy old women in shawls.

Itinerant Items

At Atlantic City a big scale business is being done at the marathon dance exhibition on the steel pier.

Walter Chrysler the younger turned over his art gallery to needy artists for three weeks, giving them one more chance to unload studio accumulations.

Great Neck is getting some rivalry from Sands Point as a popular Long Island summering place with the home-owning theater crowd.

A beauty shop where they work out paint and powder ensembles to suit the individual type of blond, brunet or redhead, invites customers to stop in for a bit of retouching when they're out shopping. The complexion is freshened up without extra charge.

A couple of gentlemen named Chin and Lee will supply all of the curious dishes necessary for a Chinese dinner in your own home, on a day's notice.

Which reminds that there are caterers scattered over the city who will do as much in most any language you can think of; if you want to give an Indian, Mexican or Rumanian party, just give 'em a ring.

Title Changes Fewer

The motion picture industry seems to do things in epidemic spurts, even to such minor matters as title changing. Last winter, and for months previous, most of the companies were sending out new names almost daily for pictures in production, or soon to be released. It occurs to me that the mails have brought surprisingly few such announcements lately.

Wonder if the companies decided such publicity was confusing, so that they're keeping their title quibbles to themselves? On the other hand, some of them give evidence of discarding the idea that a name suitable for a book or play must necessarily be altered—jazzed up—for the screen.

Vicki Baum does all her writing at night. She says she just can't work in daylight.

Hats off to Gus Klempp, of Glenwood, Iowa. He invented a ball-bearing rolling pin. But maybe husbands had better keep their hats on. The Klempp in is not padded.

Today's Anniversary

ALLIED DRIVE BEGINS

On July 18, 1918, French and American trops launched a terrific counter-attack against the onrushing German forces on a front of nearly 30 miles. Their gain was as much as six miles.

The attack, made without artillery preparation, took the Germans completely by surprise and they were thrown back in considerable confusion. Several villages and thousands of prisoners were taken in the day's fighting.

It marked the beginning of the first major Allied offensive in more than a year.

American army officers estimated German casulaties for the day at more than 20,000, of which 5000 were prisoners.

British troops in Picardy also resumed the offensive, advancing more than a mile in a much smaller operation.

Money not only goes farther in these days of the depression, but it stays away longer.

An ex-style expert says he can see nothing attractive in the backless bathing suits. Maybe he's been going to the wrong beaches.

Property Tax Cut Sharply, Says Governor

Decrease Largest in History Of State, LaFollette Points Out

Sauk City —(P)— Governor Philip F. LaFollette told an audience here today in the opening speech of his campaign for re-election that the Progressive party during the last two years has been primarily responsible for providing general property taxpayers with the largest reduction in their taxes in the history of the state.

During the first year of his administration, the chief executive said there was a drop of more than $14,000,000 in the total property tax levy for all purposes in Wisconsin as compared with the last year of former Governor Kohler's term.

For the two years of his administration, he declared, Progresssive action in the state government has lifted from the home owner, farmer and small business man more than $30,000,000 in property taxes by increasing the revenues from other sources notably the income and gasoline taxes, and by effecting economies in governmental operation.

The governor thus started out on his first week of campaigning for the Republican nomination in September with emphasis on what his recent announcement indicated will be one of his chief issues—taxing policy.

In reminiscence of the struggle in the special session of the last legislature over an unemployment relief bill the chief executive declared that if it had not been for the opposition of Conservatives, Progressive legislation would have enabled a further reduction of property taxes amounting to $10,000,000.

This, he asserted, would have served to "aid farmers, home owners' and small business men and to repay them in part for the injustice they suffered in being obliged to carry in property taxes the entire relief load in 1930 and 1931."

"Progressives do not favor 'soaking anyone,'" he said. "They do maintain that a farmer who has been obliged to pay from $150 to $200 taxes on his farm is carrying more than his share when an individual like J. C. Kimberly of Neenah, with $273,666 net cash income, is required to pay only $17.35 tax thereon. Nor is it fair to tax a home owner $100 tax on his home while George Vits of Manitowoc with $101,997 in cash dividends income, has the privilege of being exempt from income tax on that large income.

Proposed $17,000,000 Bill

The governor said that his original proposal at the special session for a $17,000,000 relief bill not only would have cut property taxes further, but would have provided the localities with sufficient funds to carry their 1932 relief burden and, by furnishing funds to provide work, would have stopped "at an early date the demoralizing effects of public or private doles."

This program would have cost the smaller income taxpayer less than the bill finally passed by the legislature, which will yield about $5,000,000, the executive said.

"It would have cost the larger income taxpayer more," he asserted. "Thus an individual, married and with three children, with $100,000 net income paid $6,500. Under the Progressive program he would have paid $20,000. With an income of $500,000 he paid $35,000. Under the Progressive program he would have paid $140,000. But an individual with $4,000 income paid $22, while under the Progressive program he would have paid only $16.

In summing up the total of property tax reduction the governor cited the $5,000.000 for relief, which he said would have been paid property holders if it had not been assessed against incomes, a $3,000.000 cut in state government expenses for the biennium, omission of the state property tax amounting to about $4,500,000 as levied the year before, and $8,600,000 annually in increased road allotments and property tax replacements from the additional two cents gasoline tax.

The state was able to get along with no tax on property by the reduction of idle cash balances, the governor said.

"The state has been collecting from taxpayers each year to maintain cash in the banks in excess of the state's cash needs," he stated. "This old and unsound policy was stopped. The state no longer collects taxes from its citizens to maintain idle and excessive cash deposits in banks at low rates of interest."

New Federal Taxes for June are Due on July 31

The deadline for paying June taxes under the new revenue bill is July 31, Miss Ethel Hillburg, deputy collector of income taxes, stated today. These taxes, to be paid monthly, should be sent directly to the collector of internal revenue at Milwaukee, although they can be collected at the local office.

Forms for recording the manufacture of brewer's wort, malt syrup, candy, jewelry, furs, radio receiving sets, phonograph records, toilet preparations, automobiles, tires, tubes and parts, soft drinks, finished fountain syrups, unfermented fruit juices, sporting goods, mechanical refrigerators, fire arms, shells and cartridges, and cameras have been sent out by the government. There also is a tax on theatre admissions and the use of pleasure boats.

ENOUGH SNUFF

St. Louis, Mo. — A patrolman frowned as David Reiner hurried up to him and sneezed in his face. But he listened intently while Reiner gasped out his story. "I've just been — ka-choo—held up," Reiner blurted. "Two men forced me into an auto and—ka-choo—one of them threw a handful of snuff in my—ka-choo—face. They robbed me of $2.55 and my—ka-choo—watch." The officer wrinkled his nose (the snuff permeated the air). "Come along with me. I'll—ka-choo—report it."

Big Crowd At Service And Picnic

BETWEEN 500 and 600 persons from Appleton, Neenah, Oshkosh, and Fond du Lac attended the fourth annual Fox River Valley Lutheran outdoor service and picnic Sunday at Pierce park. The morning service was held at 11 o'clock with the Rev. B. J. Stecker, Fond du Lac, in charge. The Rev. C. E. Fritz, Neenah, read the lesson, and the sermon was preached by the Rev. Paul H. Roth, D. D., Minneapolis, Minn., a teacher at the Lutheran Theological seminary there. The Rev. E. R. Wicklund, Oshkosh, led the prayer, and music was provided by an instrumental trio and the junior and senior choir.

Softball games provided entertainment during the afternoon, a team from Trinity English Lutheran church, Appleton, winning from the St. John church, Oshkosh, by a score of 26 to 2. The feature game of the afternoon, played between Alpha Omega group at St. John church and a team from the Reformed Lutheran church of Milwaukee, resulted in a victory for the Oshkosh team, the score being 6 to 4. The game ran 11 innings.

Threat to Wreck Town Charged to U. S. Dry Officer

Witness Says He Heard Raider Make Threat in New York Squabble

Alexandria Bay, N. Y. —(P)— Relations between the residents of this summer resort and federal prohibition agents were not improved today by the statement of an Alexandria Bay resident that he overheard a dry agent threaten to "come back and wreck the town."

As a special representative of Amos W. Woodcock, commissioner in charge of prohibition enforcement, continued his investigation into the feud between natives and the enforcement officers which has caused five injuries, G. H. Savage, secretary of the chamber of commerce, said he would send a report of the "threat" direct to Woodcock.

Robert Gibson, a stockbroker, claimed he overheard the dry agents' comment a few hours after a raid and mob scene in which two agents were beaten by an angry crowd.

"Gibson was in Watertown afterward," Savage said. "He heard a conversation in which a dry agent said, 'We'll come back and wreck the town.'"

Savage said other statements by prominent citizens would be sent to Washington, among them that of a former mayor, Fuller Cornwall.

Cornwall, Savage said, related that an agent raised a gun in his direction when he protested the raiders' acts. The agents have been charged with needless destruction of property.

Woodcock's representative, German S. Ellsworth, meanwhile continued to question villagers about the raid which resulted in the attack on the agents last Tuesday night, and the raid Thursday night after which two persons were injured when the agents drove away. A boy was injured by a stone flung toward the raiders.

Today United States District Attorney Oliver D. Burden proposed to apply in federal court at Malone for a writ removing the trial of Agent Bourke Bornemann of Syracure, out of the state courts and into a United States court. Bornemann was charged with reckless driving after the two villagers were hurt.

The Shop Window

By PEGGY POST

This week has just about done Peggy Post to a frazzle but out of it all, the shopping jaunt has really brought some brilliant brainstorms entitled "How to Keep Cool." Here they are:

PERHAPS the best known method is to take your mind away from the thermometer reading, turn on the old radio and listen the heat away. Now GALPIN'S HARDWARE STORE have a bargain that will knock you down! They're having a summer special on super heterodyne (I had to ask what this meant too) radios, the kind that fit anywhere on a table or bookcase and can be carried from cottage to home easily. The radios are grand looking things in walnut veneer, complete in two price groups. The five tube sets are $25 and the seven tube ones $35 . . . you'll have to ask your husband what the difference is . . . all I know is that they play smoothly whether it's for your morning setting up exercise, a learned pedagogue settling the affairs of the world or your favorite crooner.

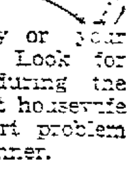
* * *

FROM Galpins I hopped across the street to the TREASURE BOX GIFT SHOP, to see what I could see in the windows of the new swelegant headquarters. There in the window was a big jig-saw puzzle about a funny jester eating chestnuts that was so tricky I had to go in to see if I could make one of the pieces fit. You know, of course, this shop has oodles of facinating puzzles for rent or for sale, one is even over 1,000 pieces. And they are such fun when the heat is just too sweltering to do anything more active.

* * *

Stockings should not be a problem these days, for one may wear them dark, very light or even, wee colorful anklets for sportswear.

* * *



DID YOU know that APPLETON PURE MILK CO. runs specials in ice cream over the weekend? Delicious, creamy ice cream made into unusual flavors and combinations that will be a great treat for the family or your guests of a Sunday. Look for them in their ads during the week and the fussiest housewife will have her dessert problem solved in an easy manner.

* * *

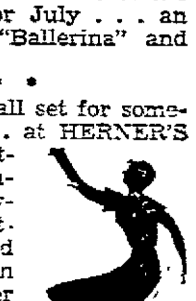
Have you heard about the bright, new color scheme that looks like an international flag? Yep, the Olympics have affected all things and now gay stripes the official Olympiad badge will be seen in sportswear and costume jewelry.

DO YOU know what to do about parched skins caught neath blazing skies? It's simple . . . just run up to ELLYN'S above Voigt's drug store for a grand facial. Ellyn has a way about her that brings smooth, skin loveliness to the swarthiest or dryest skins. She uses certain creams for each type of skin, be it terribly dry, oily or sunburned. For an appointment to make sure you can be taken care of promptly, call 411.

* * *

WHEN I'm loaded down with books on the way to the public library, I always give a secret gasp of joy at passing the HOBBY HOUSE. You see, I know that after I've gotton a few terribly intelligent tomes I can drop into the Hobby House practically next door for a few of the spanking new novels to offset the heavy reading. Running over the new book titles there I find that variety is the rule of the shop. There's Temple Bailey's "Little Girl Lost"; the keen new Charlie Chan mystery, "Keeper of the Keys"; Welzl's "The Golden North" which captured the book of the month choice for July . . . an unusual story; "Ballerina" and "Dancing Lady."

* * *

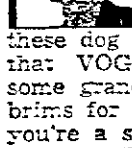


GET yourself all set for something lovely . . . at HERNER'S of course, the little shop on Oneida-st. Just arrived are the sweetest, coolest and swankiest cotton frocks that ever bloomed in a cotton year. Eyelets in delectable oak leaf pattern in blue, red or brown with white for $3.95. Then too, the terribly cute plain eyelets in adorable pastels just in are but $2.95. They're quite the thing for playtime, teatime or date time because eyelets make a sensible all round frock!

* * *

Funny things these women . . . about five years ago when the ban was lifted on dignified demureness all sizes of feminity started traveling a la short pants known as khaki knickers, but today, it's wide flowing pajamas. And they wear 'em too whether it's for a weekend trip to the lake, a touring spree or a jaunt all the way to New York.

* * *



WHILE we're on the subject of coolness, why not consider a brim hat to shade your eyes on warmish afternoons and help keep the funny shine from glistening noses these dog days. You'll discover that VOGUE HAT SHOP has some grand panamas and sport brims for only $1 . . . and if you're a stickler for tight, soft knits you'll find these here too for the same price!

French Writer has Wrong Slant on us Americans

BY DOROTHY DIX

And now a French actress has been telling the world what she thinks about the American woman, and what she thinks is a-plenty. She says that the American woman is a cheater of the worst kind because she makes her husband pay with his last drop of blood thinking he is buying her love, and she gives him nothing. She says the American man is noted in Europe as being the worst woman-chaser in the world and for being unfaithful to his wife.

DOROTHY DIX

She says that American women are slave-drivers. That all they want from their husband's is money, money, money. That they know nothing of the art of love and that is why they have no mystery, no allure, no fire, no charm, no spirit of adventure, and that is why they have no appeal for their own men and can't hold them.

"American women," says this discerning writer, "drive their men to work for them to get the things they want. If the woman next door has a new fur coat, a man doesn't get a minute's peace until his own wife has one, too. The American husband wears himself out body and soul struggling to get together the dollars that his wife throws away on trifles. He comes to her weary and worn with the day's work; he would like to rest his head on her breast like a tired child. How he would love to shut the whole world away and get a bit of heaven for a few hours!"

But no. The female Simon Legree he married to cracks the whip and flogs him on and, again I quote this inspired writer, "the fire of love strikes stone and and that stone is the woman."

My, my, my! Had you any idea that the American woman was so cold and heartless and sexless and greedy as all that? Or that the American man was such a poor downtrodden sap that he permitted himself to be worked to death by one of the Gimmie Sisters? Or that American men were so discontented with their wives? Or that they were the world's greatest philanderers? From our reading of French novels—but let that pass.

All we can say is, lady, you've got us wrong. Faults we have to spare, and we are open to criticism on a thousand points, but the love life of Americans is the tenderest, warmest, most enduring that is found among any people, and in no other country in the world are there happier homes or more devoted husbands and wives.

And the fact that divorce is so common does not disprove this. It only confirms it. It is because our ideal of domestic love is so high that we are always seeking it, and if one husband or wife fails us we break the matrimonial bond and pursue our quest instead of putting up with a lukewarm affection or indifference and making an establishment or social position or a good provider or a good cook take the place of romance, as is so often done in other countries.

Certainly it will surprise the millions of wives whose suns rise and set in their husbands to be told that they do not love them. They haven't a thought that doesn't center around their Johns. John's pleasure, John's comfort, John's happiness and wellbeing motivate the world for them. There isn't a service so menial they wouldn't glory inperforming it for their husbands. There isn't a sacrifice that they haven't made a thousand times for their husbands so gladly that they didn't even know it was a sacrifice. And if this isn't love, it is a mighty good synthetic imitation of the real article.

As for the American man working himself to death to pay for his wife's finery, that is utter nonsense. There may be a few daughters of the Horse Leech crying, more, more, more scattered around here and there, but the great majority of women are the family savings bank and pennypinchers and are bending all their energies toward helping their husbands succeed and get a start in the world.

And, nine times out of ten, when you see a middle-aged woman dolled up in Paris clothes and riding in a limousine it isn't blood money she has wrung out of her husband that she is spending. It is the money she helped earn with her own labor.

Of course, the American man is the world's prize husband. No other man is so generous, so broadminded and liberal in dealing with his woman-kind as he is, but for all of that no other man expects so much of his wife as he does.

In other countries men seem to be satisfied with their wives if they are fairly intelligent and not too hard on the eyes, and if they are domestic and good housekeepers and good mothers, but the American man expects his wife to be all of these things and a vamp and a spellbinder besides.

He expects her to keep young and slim and goodlooking, no matter how much housework she has to do. He expects her to keep him entertained and amused. He expects her to make and maintain the family place in society without his having to put on his evening clothes and go out and do the agreeable to people who bore him. And so if the American man gives a lot to his wife there is no denying he gets his money's worth.

Furthermore, that the American woman suits the American man as a wife is amply proved by the fact that American men seldom marry outside of their own country. Many American girls marry foreigners. But the American man knows what he wants in a wife and he sticks to the domestic brand that is made in the U. S. A.

And, lastly, the reason the American man works so hard is not because he is goaded to his office by his wife, but because business is our great national pastime. It is the big game where the stakes are millions and the sky is the limit that a man plays. It is the thing he gets the biggest kick out of, and he does it for fun more than for profit.

And that is something no foreigner understands.

Questions About Names

Question: My daughter is a practising doctor and has lately married a doctor. How shall she have her cards engraved? Also how shall they have a double card engraved? She has her professional cards engraved, "Dr. Ethel H. Brown."

Answer: The double card of a Doctor of Medicine married to a Doctor of Medicine would be "Dr. John K. and Dr. Ethel H. Brown," which is so awkward, that a double card, for social use only, is usually engraved "Dr. and Mrs. John K. Brown." If she chooses to use her title socially, they would better have separate cards, a narrow man's card, "Dr. John Kingsland Brown" and a squarer woman's card, "Dr. Ethel Howard Brown."

Question: If a child's father dies before the child is born, but the child is named the same as his dead father, is he called Junior?

Answer: No—the posthumous son of John Smith is given his father's name exactly, "John Smith." His mother is "Mrs. John Smith" until her son married, when she becomes "Mrs. John Smith, Senior."

Question: Could Junior be used after a woman's name?

Question: Because of the depression, would it be bad form to have printed visiting cards instead of those which are engraved? Would it not be better to do this than have cheap paper?

Answer: It seems to me that if the depression necessitates the printing instead of engraving of visiting cards, their use would be curtailed to a point where they might be eliminated. In short, if you are intending to write invitations to parties on your cards, you should be able to have them engraved. If you are not entertaining, you need so few that their cost is negligible—unless of course your husband holds an official position, in which case again your cards should be engraved.

When boiling cauliflower place them in kettle with their heads downward. Scum rising to the top of kettle will not then settle on flowers and discolor them.

If washable curtains become rusted on the rods during damp weather, dampen the rust spots, cover with a thin coating of salts of lemon, and let stand until stains disappear.

When painting a room the following hints may be found useful: Don't be in a hurry to finish; put old newspapers before work, and remove all curtains and hangings; keep handy a rag soaked in turps to wipe off "mistakes;" start painting in the darkest corner of the room and work towards the light; don't drown your brush—immerse it about half an inch; use a piece of stout cardboard with a straight edge to protect woodwork or wall that it is not desired to splash.

When making muffins in iron pans, grease and heat pans in oven before putting in butter. Muffins will then be much lighter.

Farm Folk Don't Like Camp Debris

BY ANGELO PATRI

I hope that the children, and the grownups, too, who go to the country this summer will remember to pack their manners along with their knickers and sweaters. We country folk are sensitive about some things and we appreciate good manners and courtesies when we meet them. We are quite as likely to be offended by bad mannered actions as city folk. We can't for the life of us see why they should save up their bad manners for us.

For example, who would think of walking into a suburban garden or a city back yard, take possession of it, spread out his lunch, invite his family to make merry, and rise and go his way without even saying, "thank you," or picking up his basketsful of fragments? Nobody, of course. But many bodies, and quite as a matter of course, step into gardens and fields in the country and make themselves discourteously at home.

I remember the day a family drove their car through a field of blossoming buckwheat, came to rest in the middle of it, and proceeded to lay it low. The children raced through it and played it was the sea. They rolled in it and played it was a bed of flowers spread for their enjoyment. Until the owner appeared in wrath. Then they gazed at him in open-mouthed amazement. "We didn't do anything to your field. Broke down the grass. It will grow again. You needn't be so fussy about a little thing like that."

Of course, they did not know how much a field of buckwheat cost in terms of time and money and hope and need. They might have, had they carried their manners along with them, but you see this was the country and in the country everything is free and open and go as you please.

Uncle Sam Crosby went down the meadow to bring in the calf, leaving his kettle boiling on the stove and the table set for tea. He and the cat and the dog always had the evening meal together. When he came back after putting bossie in her crib for the night he found a group of people on his porch. They were having tea. "Good evening," said he. "Good evening," said the gentleman with his mouth full of sandwich, "do you live here? We found your door open and the kettle boiling so we made ourselves at home. We thought whoever owned the house wouldn't mind so we took the hot water for our tea. Have you got any butter? We forgot ours."

"That's not the only thing you forgot," said Uncle Sam. "Up our way it isn't considered good manners to go into a person's house and lift the tea kettle off the stove. And I'm not given to having strangers eating on my porch. I'd be obliged to you if you would go somewhere else to have your tea."

You see, we are hospitable. We like to make strangers welcome. We want them to like us and we hope they enjoy the country. But we hate to be taken for granted. Please, this summer, pack up your manners and bring them along. Then we will know who you are and our doors will be open to you.

The STORY OF SUE

By Margery Hale

SUE reflected that it had been a long time since she had met Jack at an office, as she crossed the street, walked a block to the north and a block to the east, and took the elevator to the law firm with which he was affiliated. The gilded letters on the door hurt her a little. Jack's name wasn't included in the name of the firm. He wasn't a junior partner of this organization. He was one of half a dozen younger attorneys who dreamed of the day when they might be.

Across the street loomed the office building where Jack's father practised. Sue could see it through a window in the corridor of the building. Jack's name had been displayed so proudly over there. But now — She straightened her slim shoulders, raised her head, winked back a rebellious tear, and opened the door into the general waiting room. It was large. Much larger than she had expected that it would be. But there was no one in it.

Sue sat down. She decided that the receptionist had probably gone down the corridor to deliver a message to one of the men in his private office. She would return in a minute. But the hands of the clock moved on and nearly five minutes had passed when Sue began to wonder if she weren't coming.

"Jack will be out. I'll sit still and wait for him," she told herself, reaching for a magazine. Its cover was worn. It was torn and thumbed. Sue's lips twitched reminiscently. She was remembering the office of the young dentist where she had worked just before her marriage. His magazines had been painfully new, a dead give-away to the fact his patients were few.

Voices, drifting carelessly, caught Sue's attention. Girls' tones. Relaxed and more or less confidential now that the day was over.

"I suppose I ought to stay at the desk until that Thornton girl gets here," one of them was saying. "I heard her husband ask her to meet him here. But I'm too tired. She used to punch the plugs in a switchboard herself. She isn't so high and mighty that she can't be kept waiting. Not so hot looking, either, if you ask me."

"She might walk in, and hear you," the other girl cautioned. "I never saw her. What's she like?"

"Oh about average height, slim, blue eyed, dark haired—pretty, I guess, but not the type that would raise a man's temperature enough to make him dangerous. Nice enough if you like 'em safe."

"Uh-huh. I get you. Her husband's a knockout, through I could go for him in a big way."

"Sure you could. So could any other girl. But he isn't looking around. He's all wrapped up in her. She was the secretary in his father's office—Thornton, Curtis, and Thorton. Jack was the junior partner. Now the second Thornton has been dropped from the name. She was engaged to Harry Becker first but her kid sister took him away from her. But it seemed she really wanted Jack Thornton anyway, so she didn't mind winning the consolation prize. And neither would anybody else. Ready to leave?"

Sue realized that the girls were in a small rest room which opened into the hall on which the waiting room was located. They had left the door open and their voices had carried along the quiet room.

She wondered what they would say when they saw her. Then she decided to leave and make another appearance.

NEXT: Sue re-enters the office.

Bathing Suit Makes Women Conscious of Beauty Shortcomings

BY ELSIE PIERCE

Judging by the beautiful pictures one sees at shore resorts and by the many letters pouring in, the bathing suit and beach make a fine combination for spurring women on to greater loveliness. Look around you the next time you are at the beach. I dare say you'll see a higher standard of feminine face and figure than you did yesteryear.

And come with me to my desk and scan some of the letters. See how beauty conscious the abbreviated bathing suits make women. Small wonder—seeing as how they call attention to every little figure flaw. And Old Sol [illegible] a mighty magnifying effect on [illegible] hair difficulties.

The Figure

Letter upon letter [illegible] that the old [illegible] figure ain't what it ought to [illegible] either too stout [illegible] the way [illegible] there's an uneven [illegible] of weight. Upper arms [illegible] or waist, or thighs [illegible] more than [illegible] Or as luck would [illegible] good proportions [illegible] for scrawny neck and [illegible] or a flat chest [illegible] extremities and [illegible] words, the [illegible] have the [illegible] thank for the figure [illegible] wager we'll [illegible]

The Face

And the summer [illegible] are starting ever so many [illegible] a clearing campaign [illegible] and rose-colored lamps are kind to the skin, but the glaring, magnifying light of the sun shows up every little imperfection. "I never knew my skin was so full of blackheads or little eruptions or under-the-skin pimples, or the pores so large—these are only a few of the complaints which have come to me recently. Take your pocket mirror into the sunlight and see what your own skin reveals. If it is clear and smooth and fine of texture you are indeed fortunate. Keep it that way. Don't let up in your beauty care.

Superfluous hair is another evil that the sun shows up, much to the mystery of thousands of women. A little down on the lip suddenly looms like a heavy moustache growth in the glaring sun.

Signs of Age

And what with youth running rampant everywhere signs of age [illegible] up [illegible] cruelly by comparison. As one woman writes, "It is said that one feels young and really isn't awfully old yet is stamped out of youth's class by a few facial wrinkles or a hanging chin. There ought to be a law; there ought to be a way that women could at least LOOK as young as they FEEL." The fact is there is a law and there is a way, really, and it's simple and sensible.

Elsie Pierce, famous beauty lecturer, will answer any questions on beauty you wish to ask her. Address Miss Pierce, in care of Appleton Post-Crescent enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Your Birthday

"CANCER"

If July 19th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:15 a. m. to 11:45 a. m., from 4 p. m. to 5:25 p. m. and from 8 p. m. to 9.30 p. m. The danger periods are from 8 a. m. to 9.30 a. m. and from 2 p. m. to 3.30 p. m.

The Fates will apparently be benevolent on July 19th, and there will be very few knock-out blows delivered on this date. Most controversies will be "clearing up" storms, and the day should end with kindly feelings towards all the world. Some surprising developments in the business world may arouse general interest.

The disposition of the child born on this July 19th, will be more morose than congenial, although its smile can be most disarming. It may receive a mediocre intelligence rating, but will be capable of startling the world with occasional flashes of brilliancy and wit. Continued great effort is out of its line, but it will display feverish spells of explosive endeavor.

You were not born with a silver spoon in your mouth. If born on July 19th, although in conditions of comparative affluence you were faced with difficulties—possibly in the home. You have overcome these and risen superior to influences which would have dragged down one less high-principled and less able to contend with opposition. Again too if born in a state of [illegible] you [illegible] by your strong [illegible] conquered these handicaps and are self-made without feeling it necessary to worship your creator.

Your disposition is a generous one and your sympathies are wide and tolerant. In no sense of the word, as you are narrow-minded or ultra-conventional. You have your own particular creed of life, and live up to it and abide the consequences. One of your most engaging qualities is your readiness to admit your own mistakes and to make amends for them. Considerate of others, you do not offend either by deed or word. You realize that more flies are caught by molasses than by vinegar. In marital relations, be you man or woman, you will be loyal and constant, and will be not only husband or wife, but a reliable pal in all sorts of weather."

Successful People Born on July 19th:

2—John Purroy Mitchell, former mayor of New York City.

3—Elbert Hubbard, author

4—Charles Horace Mayo, famous surgeon.

5—Samuel Colt, inventor

Squeeze Can be Averted By Proper Advance Play

BY ELY CULBERTSON

The squeeze play, whereby one or both opponents are forced to give up otherwise winning cards by the inexorable working of the time factor, can frequently be defeated if the defending players realize in time that a squeeze situation is likely to develop, and take prompt, if daring, steps to avert that situation. In fact, most hands which eventually develop the squeeze in the early stages present to the defending players, fully awake to the defensive potentialities of their cards, a chance for sucessful defense.

An illustration of the manner in which a squeeze was averted is given in the hand below played in a Duplicate game in Little Rock, Ark. The defending player who realized the danger that impended, but the one chance for successful defense, was Mrs. Clarence Pfeifer, who sat East.

North—Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable

North:
♠ Q 10 7
♡ A 9 7 4
♢ K 7
♣ A Q J 2

West:
♠ K 5 4
♡ Q 10 5
♢ A Q J 10 5
♣ 6 5

East:
♠ 9 3

♢ 8 6 4 3 2
♣ K 10 9 7

South:
♠ A J 8 6 2
♡ K 8 3 2
♢ 9
♣ 8 4 3

The Bidding:

South	West	North	East
		1♣	Pass
1♠	2♢	3♠	Pass
4♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

The bidding followed natural and normal lines. When North bid three spades, he elected to give at once not only the full Raises his hand held, but an optional Raise as well. This slight overbid would, however, be actually made by most good players particularly when not vulnerable.

Against the contract of four spades West, unwilling to lead from his diamond tenace, elected to open the 6 of clubs. The Knave was played from Dummy, and East won with the King, and then took stock of the situation and the defensive possibilities of the cards. It was apparent that a return of her partner's bid suit could accomplish nothing constructive, but would merely establish without effort the King in the Dummy and thus possibly afford a discard if South, as was possible, held a singleton in the suit. West's Opening lead might conceivably have been a singleton, but more probably a doubleton. Hence the return of a club could accomplish nothing, as East had no prospect of again being in the lead until the trumps were drawn, and, in any event, East would then have another club trick.

There then remained the possibility of a heart lead. Ordinarily, holding J x, this would be an undesirable lead, but desperate situations require daring treatment, and East foreseeing the extreme probability that in order to defeat the contract a possible third-round heart trick must be established in her partner's hand, boldly led the heart Knave. This trick was won with the Ace in Dummy, and the Queen of spades led and finessed. West won with the King and before leading the Ace of diamonds, led another round of hearts, which drove out South's King and permitted him to cash the heart trick when in the lead later with the diamond Ace.

TODAY'S POINTER

An appreciation of the time factor in relation to the trick-taking power of a hand, played either in attack or in defense, is essential to successful play. The success or failure of a contract almost always rests upon suit establishment.

A BOOK A DAY

BY BRUCE CATTON

America In The Pacific

If you've ever wondered just why the American government should be so concerned about the Japanese adventure in China, you can hardly do better than to read "America in the Pacific," by Foster Rhea Dulles.

Mr. Dulles goes back to colonial days to trace the development of the United States' policy in the Far East. His book is exceedingly enlightening—and, if we ever get into real trouble over the Japanese-Manchurian mixup, it will simply be invaluable.

He shows that the United States, consciously or unconsciously has been facing toward the setting sun ever since its infancy.

The Louisiana purchase had hardly been concluded before the nation was scheming to get a foothold on the Pacific coast. New England merchants were trading with China, eastern fur traders were doing business along the Oregon; the seizure of California was talked of years before it happened, and at one time the nation was prepared to fight Britain to get what is now British Columbia.

Following the Mexican War, Perry went out to awaken Japan from its long sleep. American traders began the infiltration process that was ultimately to make Hawaii an American territory. Alaska was bought from Russia. After 30 years of indecision, American Samoa was seized. And then came the Spanish War and the conquest of the Philippines.

The motive for all of this? Trade—the desire to get a fair slice of the rich eastern commerce, the desire that now makes Uncle Sam keep a watchful eye on the things that are happening in China and Manchuria.

This book can hardly be recommended too strongly.

Old Gardener

THE OLD GARDENER SAYS:

Roses go through the winter with less loss than is often experienced if they are allowed to ripen up thoroughly in late summer and autumn. This means that feeding should not be continued after this time. If fertilizers are given the plants later a new soft growth will be produced and the plants will be in danger of winter killing. It is well also to stop cultivating now, and to cover the rose beds with peat moss which will help to keep the ground around the roots cool and moist. Watering, however, should not be discontinued. An abundance of water will do more than anything else to keep the roses blooming for the rest of the season. It is always wiser to apply water in the morning than in the late afternoon or evening.

Neenah Junior Nine is Barred From Its Title

Championship Claimed by Oshkosh Under Rules Of Participation

Menasha—Twin city residents are disgusted with the attitude taken by Oshkosh in disbarring the Legion baseball team, composed of Neenah and Menasha players, from the championship title. Oshkosh has claimed the title and has gone on playing the schedule originally listed for Neenah-Menasha, claiming the two games it lost to Neenah and the Neenah victory over Winneconne.

Col. F. J. Schneller, one of the originators and sponsors of the Junior baseball team, claimed Saturday that the Neenah team originally was organized on the Neenah-Menasha community spirit plan, as the two cities are so closely associated in its religious, business and other activities that it goes as one community. All former games played by the Neenah team, which included Menasha players, even when it won the state championship, were played under the one community idea and nothing was said to the contrary until this year when the team gave the Oshkosh organization two decisive beatings and also won the Winneconne game, he pointed out.

"Neenah and Menasha," Mr. Schneller said "have but a boulevard between them. They have but one Catholic church to which people from both cities attend, one C. M. T. C. unit, and there is but one armory and military company of which boys of the two towns are members. There are various other churches and lodges which are maintained by people from both cities.

"The Fond du Lac director of the district is a new man and is basing his decisions and giving the county championship to Oshkosh on conditions existing at Fond du Lac and North Fond du Lac, which are two cities far apart and have not the community feeling and activities as do Neenah and Menasha."

R. C. Miller, coach of the Oshkosh team, and one of the main objectors, quotes rule III of the rules governing the team, which states:

"Rule III—Each player must be a bona-fied resident of the community served by the post sponsoring the team in which he enrolls in accordance with the regulations laid down by department athletic committee or department executive committee of the respective department."

"Rule XII—In order to qualify its department championship team for entry into the regional tournament, each department must comply with the rules herein set forth. Suspension or nullifying by any department any of these rules, will automatically disbar its championship team from entry into a regional tournament."

It is understood that a meeting of head officers of the athletic board and committeemen is to be called, the expense of the hearing to be charged to the Oshkosh team which is responsible for the complaint.

People cite several other athletic matches played by Neenah, Menasha and Oshkosh teams, especially the hockey matches, which were on several occasions won by Neenah's team, and were not recognized by the Oshkosh managers as wins. As a result the Neenah team, which had won the annual trophy, failed to receive it on account of complaints entered by Oshkosh.

The complaint over the junior baseball team is based on the fact that there are several Menasha players on the team.

Milwaukee Motorist Is Drunken Driver

Neenah—W. H. Berkholz of Milwaukee was fined $100 and costs Saturday in municipal court when he pleaded guilty of operating his automobile while intoxicated. His license to drive a car also was revoked for six months. Berkholz was arrested last Friday night by Officer Harold Nielsen on Highway 41. Berkholz pleaded with the judge that he needed to drive his car to make a living, but the judge informed him he should have thought of that before driving while intoxicated. His promise to never drink again while driving failed to save him from the fine and losing his license.

State Aid for Pensions $550

That is $14,744 Less Than Is Due County, Says Treasurer

Neenah—"We don't even take it into account in our annual budget—the prospect of substantial state aid for widow's pensions and care of dependent children is so far removed," says Earl E. Fuller, Winnebago-co treasurer.

The state each year makes a half-promise to counties to bear one-third of the annual expense for the widows' pension and dependent children fund. But when the orders for payment to the counties are sent out, the sums are always much smaller than that one-third.

In evidence, Mr. Fuller produced the check received Saturday's mail. It was for $552.20, which is exactly $14,744.59 smaller than the one-third.

Winnebago-co last year spent for this purpose $45,890.38. Thirty-three and one-third per cent of that would be $15,296 79.

The state legislature annually appropriates what sum it feels it can give for widow's pensions and care of dependent children. A measure provides that the counties should receive one-third of what they spend unless the state treasury fund is not large enough to cover all, in which case the appropriation is distributed on a pro-rated basis according to the proportionate burden borne. Veteran employes at the courthouse say that the latter course has been necessary since the fund was created more than 15 years ago.

He started with a single press in a building in the rear of his home. Later he moved to Main-st, where he occupied various locations before deciding that the growing business necessitated larger quarters. This prompted him to erect the present building which during the past few years has been added to as more room became necessary. Mr. Banta retired from actual business activities a few years ago.

Propose Organization Of Union High School

Special to Post-Crescent

Waupaca — A meeting was held Tuesday at Scandinavia for the purpose of discussing a proposal of buying the building and grounds of the Central Wisconsin college located at Scandinavia, to be used as a Union high school. Prof. A. O. Lee, president of the college pointed out the fact that during the past four years Scandinavia town and village have averaged 64 pupils attending high schools and that tuition for these pupils amounts to $4,464. Thus a union high school could be paid for in a very few years at no greater cost than tuition now totals. The village people were given first opportunity to purchase the college buildings and grounds at a sum of $15,000. He also pointed out the fact that as Scandinavia was situated exactly in the middle of the township no greater burden would be placed on any of the school patrons and that with the aid coming to union high schools they would be able to operate their school at the same figure approximately that they would have to pay out in tuition to neighboring high schools. A petition containing signatures of 10 per cent of the voters of both the village and town will be required to secure an election on the question and a majority of the votes cast must be favorable and the approval of the state superintendent will be required in order to establish the free union high school at the site of the Central Wisconsin college at Scandinavia. The college was closed this spring owing to financial difficulties.

Gambler's Throw

by Eustace L. Adams

SYNOPSIS: Jerry Calhoun, captured by Limpy Ashwood, gangster chief, when he invades Ashwood's island in an attempt to rescue Nancy Wentworth, overheard Lucci, another prisoner, trying to bribe Ashwood's gang to double-cross their leader. Nancy and four men are being held for ransom. Stevens and Emory are allies of Jerry.

Chapter 30

EVERY MAN FOR HIMSELF

JERRY wondered how many of Ashwood's gang were attending this conference.

"I got a dozen men making four-five grand a month," Lucci said. "You oughta do that and better. I'll advance each of you five grand when we get back to Chi. That is, if you put this racket over tonight the way I say."

"Well," observed the pilot's voice. "Limpy, himself, always told us to back a winning horse, not an also-ran."

"Looks to me as if this yegg from Chicago's leading the field right now since Limpy's pulling out." This voice sounded like the guard who had brought news of the murder on the beach. Were there no loyal men on the entire island?

"Well, it's up to you guys whether you're with me or not. But you better decide quick. After I leave this joint anyone who ain't with me is against me and I'm quick on the draw. How about it?"

There was a moment's silence. Jerry tried to stop breathing lest some sound penetrate the leafy shelter.

"Me, I'm for One-shot here!" A steely voice spoke up that held a note of leadership. "You fellers know as well as I do that if the mob is going to bust up, Limpy ought to have given us a bigger cut so we could take care of ourselves until this thing blows over. What's he doing right here on this island to protect us? Did he stop one of those swells up at the house from cutting Di Michael's throat last night? It's every man for himself now. I'm joining up with One-shot. The rest of you can do as you damn please."

There was a confused babel of voices, out of which rose Lucci's, hard and triumphant.

"All right, then. Give me that gat. That's the boy. Now the rest of you listen for the ruckus to start up at the house, then come up on the run. Have you engine started and ready to go."

Jerry waited for no more. Inching his way out of the thatch, he turned and crawled swiftly toward the house.

Fifty feet from the porch Jerry cast all caution aside and raced across the grass. A homicidal maniac at large; Ashwood, frustrated and perhaps, planning revenge; Lucci and the treacherous gangsters about to flare up in bloody rebellion—the flyer knew a moment of panic least harm might have come to the girl during the scant ten minutes he had left her alone in the dark.

"What on earth is the matter?" Her calm voice was like a dash of ice water in his face.

"Phew!" he breathed sheepishly. "I was seeing ghosts! I've been listening to an interesting conversation. I can't tell you about it now; we'll have to work fast. Let's go inside. As soon as you can, go to your room. Don't come out, under any circumstances, unless you hear my voice. There will be trouble tonight."

He anticipated a flood of questions, but the girl turned without a word and entered the living room. He followed, blinking in the sudden change from darkness to light.

"What, what?" Ashwood's voice, suave and genial, greeted them. "Don't tell us that you are tired of the moonlight already!"

Jerry had the grace to blush, hating himself for it. Nancy, however, met the cripple's eyes unabashed.

"Please don't lose your sophistication, Mr. Ashwood," she protested. "When you are ingenuous, you lose much of your charm."

Emory whooped in glee.

"Touche!" he laughed gaily. "Unless you can counter that thrust, Ashie, you'll lose my respect!"

"Emory," confesssed Ashwood sadly, "a rapierlike cut from a beautiful woman never fails to render me defenseless." Turning to Mr. Titherington, he said placatingly, "I'm sorry, sir, that we cannot continue our conversation upon religion. I'm sure you are anxious to retire."

Mr. Titherington twisted his black ribbon, inflated his chest importantly and then, remembering where he was, exhaled violently, rose, bowed and retired in some confusion.

"Emory, would you care to inspect our defenses in a little midnight stroll?" suggested the cripple, pushing himself to his feet. "I am minded to see what the Rollo boys are doing on the beach."

Emory rose with alacrity and the two went out into the night. The room seemed very empty. Jerry hastily seized the opportunity to tell Stevens what he had overheard in the hangar. The detective received the news in silence. Then, looking mildly at Nancy, he advised her to retire to her room, to remain fully clothed and to await developments.

Nancy smiled at them both and disappeared.

"Wish I was sure things wouldn't start for an hour or two," Stevens observed. "I'd like to take a little nap. Let's see, now, where is everybody?"

"Hamilton, Mallory, Martin and Nancy in their rooms," Jerry counting them off on his fingers. "Lucci may be in his room, too, by this time. Emory and Ashwood out. You and I here. That's all."

"Uh, huh." The old man, his hands clasped over one knee, considered the problem. "I'd sort of been counting on the feller who likes to cut throats contributing his gun to us. If we knew who he was, we might persuade him.

"Do you know," Stevens continued, "this double-crossing idea of One-shot's will help us, if luck breaks our way. He's got the guards to expecting a fight and a lot of confusion. They aren't going to shoot down everyone they see running around outside like they would on a nice quiet night. That'll give us a chance for our white alley."

"As soon as Emory comes back, let's scout along the hall to see if Lucci is in his room," suggested Jerry, longing for the action to begin. "Why wait? At least we know where he is. It's just as well for him to be guarding us against a flank attack from Limpy."

"Let's go," snapped the piot.

Baltimore, Md. — That hardening of the arteries is due to use of alcohol, tobacco, coffee or other stimulants, as has been taught by some, is a lot of "propaganda" is the belief of Dr. Raymond Hussey, professor of pathology at Yale University, who recently addressed the medical alumni of the University of Maryland here

Virtually nothing is known about the factors bringing about this condition, he reports, and treatment of it now consists of prevention rather than cure, in some cases.

He urges that the public be taught the significence of the disease, particularly when it affects the coronary arteries, those which supply the muscles of the heart.

WISCONSIN RAPIDS — Wisconsin Rapids entertained the Electric City nine at the Rapids park Sunday afternoon breaking the Kaukauna jinx that has followed them throughout last season and all of this season. Incidently the Kaws were shoved from the top of the league ladder when the Rapids crew pounded in four runs in the eighth inning to break a tie and cop a 10 to 6 victory. The game was a nip and tuck affair throughout the contest, the lead changing several times up to the eighth inning. The victory for the Rapids sets the Kaws in second place, while the northerners occupy the first position.

Fortin, who has twice hurled the Kaws to the top of the league ladder, weakened in the eighth to allow the Rapidsmen four runs. The barrage of runs drove him from the mound and he was replaced by Pocan. Pocan held the Reedsmen in check through the two remaining innings.

Batter Fortin

The Rapidsmen battered Fortin for 10 hits, four being scored in the eighth inning rally. Kaukauna played nearly errorless ball while the northerners were credited with five misses. Les Smith was easily the outstanding slugger in the Kaw lineup with a triple and double out of three trips to the plate. He also was credited with scoring a run. Play opened with the Rapids taking a 1 to 0 lead in the first frame. In the second Kaukauna retaliated with two runs to take the lead.

In the third the Kaws scored another run to lead three to two. They held the lead until the last half of the fourth when the Rapids put on a scoring spurt to lead 4 to 3. Three runs in the sixth ended the Kaukauna scoring to set the score at 6 to 4 in favor of the Electric city. Two runs in the seventh deadlocked the teams until the disastrous eighth.

Kaye Don Garners Water Speed Title With Miss England

Luss, Loch Lomond, Scotland,— (AP)— Kaye Don, British speed boat racing king, today won back for England the world's water speed record, setting a new mark of 119.81 miles per hour, the average of two runs over the mile course on Loch Lomond in his boat, Miss England III.

The new mark tops by more than 8 miles an hour the previous record held by Gar Wood, of Detroit. Wood's record, set in Florida waters, was 111.726 miles.

Don Broke the record twice in two hours today. On his first run, made shortly after 5 a. m., he roared over the course, a mile up and a mile back, at an average speed of 117.43 miles. An hour later he and his 22-year-old mechanic, Dick Garner, climbed in the Miss England III again and set out for a second try.

The first mile lap, from south to north, on the sceond run, was covered at 120.50 miles an hour and the southward lap at 119.12, an average of 119.81.

Gullic Garners 9 Hits as Brews Wallop Toledo

Milwaukee Crew Takes First Game 20-5; Wins Second 8 to 6

BY WILLIAM WEEKES
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO — (AP) — Minneapolis' runaway winning streak has been broken, but only the most herois measures by the Indianapolis Indians were sufficient to check the Millers.

The halting was done yesterday and it required three hours and 15 minutes, a grand total of 40 hits, considerable wear and tear on 25 athletes. The Indians won the contest, 22 to 20, leaving the Millers with a winning string of nine straight, upon which to look back. The victory also cut Minneapolis' American association leading margin to a mere five games. The battle lasted so long that a scheduled second game was broken up by the 6 o'clock closing law, with the Indians leading 6 to 1, in the third inning.

Some extremely stout hitting by Milwaukee and Ted Gullic in particular, gave the Brewers a 20 to 5 decision over Toledo in the first game, after which they took the second, 8 to 6. Gullic rammed out two home runs and four singles in the first game, driving in nine runs, to tie the association's best perfect day at bat record. His first homer came with the bases choked and the second one drove in two mates. Fred Stiely coasted to his eighth victory of the season. Caldwell outlasted Forrest Twogood, Belve Bean and Roxie Lawson in the second game.

Columbus Wins

A couple of very fancy pitching jobs gave Columbus two victories over Kansas City. Fred Blake held the Blues to five hits to win, 4 to 0, and Phil Weinert, making his first appearance in a Red Bird uniform, gave only four safeties in the second game and won, 4 to 1. The Birds bunched their hits off Joe Dawson in the first and seventh innings to collect on the first game, while Lou Fette was hit opportunely in the nightcap.

Russ Van Atta own his thirteenth victory of the season as St. Paul won the opener from Louisville, 6 to 4, and Bubber Jonnard was credited with his twelfth when the Colonels took the second game, 11 to 5. The Saints belted Clyde Hatter out of action early in the third inning of the first battle, while Slim Harris, Grady Adkins and Ossie Orwoll failed to stop the Colonels in the second. The customers showered Umpire Rue with cushions and pop bottles in the ninth inning of the second game when he called a balk on Orwoll.

Canzoneri Meets Jadick Tonight

Kid Chocolate and Jack Berg to Tangle at Madison Square Bowl

New York—While Tony Canzoneri is seeking the junior welterweight championship at Philadelphia tonight two of the foremost challengers for his lightweight title, Kid Chocolate and Jack (Kid) Berg, will be tangling over the 15-round route in Madison Square Garden bowl.

Canzoneri's foe in a ten rounder in Philadelphia will be the hometown speedster, Johnny Jadick, who won the 140-pound title from Tony a few weeks ago. Canzoneri's lightweight championship will not be at stake.

Chocolate rules a slight favorite over Berg in their tussle although the British windmill earned a 12-round decision over the "Keed" in their first meeting.

Two other interesting matches are on the Metropolitan district program. In one, Christopher Battalino, former featherweight champion, will meet Frankie Petrolle, Schnectady, N. Y., welterweight, in a ten rounder at the Queensboro stadium tomorrow night. Petrolle, brother of the more famous Billy, gave Battalino a trouncing in a recent meeting. In the other, Primo Carnera and Jack Gross will fight 10 rounds or less at Ebbets field Wednesday night as Humbert Fugazy returns to the promotorial wars.

Long Beach, Fla. — Olin Dutra's 282 wins Metropolitan Open Golf championship.

Legion Juniors New Champs; Trim Bay Team, 16-15

Appleton Aggregation Wins District Championship in Wild Game

Defeating the legion juniors of Green Bay for the second game in succession, the American legion juniors of this city won the district championship Saturday by a score of 16 to 15 in a fracas filled with errors.

The Appleton team won the first of the three game championship series earlier in the week and yesterday put the Bay players out of running with another victory. This is the first time the Appleton team has won the district championship, although they came close on a few other occasions.

They are determined now to go as far as possible, and are working hard to represent Wisconsin for the junior world championship. The state champs will go to Superior to play Minnesota and South and North Dakota. Winners in this meet will go to Omaha to play for the Western championship, and the Western champs will play somewhere in Maine for the title. Winners in these tournaments get to see the World Series games at the expense of Major leagues.

Appleton Outplayed

The Green Bay crew outplayed the Appleton juniors throughout the game, but the hard slugging of the locals brought the victory in the final inning when eight counters were tallied. The Bays took a two run lead in the first two innings. The Appleton nine rallied in the third to make it three to two, but a run in the fourth tied the score 3-all. The fifth inning was scoreless for both teams, but in the sixth, the Bays held a slugfest and brought in six runs. The Appleton crew scored only once in their part of the sixth. Both teams scored four runs in the seventh, and Green Bay took two in the eighth.

Then came the eventful ninth, and with every player slapping the ball, the juniors won the championship and the game by a one-run margin.

Green Bay had 11 hits and made five errors, while the Appleton crew garnered 18 hits and had 12 misses. Fredericks hurled for the Appleton juniors and Krause stood behind the bat. Sobkoski occupied the mound for the Bay youngsters and Simons caught.

Eastern League Drops Out of Competition

New York—(AP)—One more baseball circuit has been wiped off the fast-dwindling minor league list.

The Eastern league, a class A outfit organized 16 years ago, threw up the sponge yesterday after the New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers had elected to surrender the Bridgeport and Hartford franchise respectively.

When the two parent major league clubs withdrew their support, directors of the league quickly decided they could not continue and wound up the season with yesterday's games.

IT'S WALTER JOHNSON, JR.

A little more than 25 years ago, there came out of the west a tall, rangy youth who could fling a baseball with unbelievable speed. He was Walter Johnson. Today at least part of the story is being repeated. Walter Johnson, Jr., left above, son of the Big Train, is burning up an amateur league in Reno, Nev., with his speed ball hurling. Walter, Jr., is summer vacationing with his grandfather, Mayor E. E. Roberts of Reno, shown above.

Chicago Bruins Down Giants in Double Bill

BY GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHALMERS Cissell, the $123,000 beauty who never could play anywhere near that amount of baseball for the Chicago White Sox, begins at least to resemble the player he was supposed to be when he appeared on the major league scene five seasons ago.

It is the Cleveland Indian's however, and not the White Sox, who are cashing in on the second baseman's delayed rise to stardom. In his four years with the Sox, the Portland product never hit higher than .280, and he fell to .220 last season. He's cracking the ball at a .303 clip for the Indians, and the box scores reveal he has been getting his hits where they count on the tribe's present rampage through the east.

Willie Kamm, another coast star who cost Chicago a pretty penny back in '22, is playing bang-up ball at third base for Roger Peckinpaugh. The pair have rounded out an infield that stack up defensively with the best of them.

By winning yesterday's double-header from Boston, 5 to 4 and 8 to 6, the Indians stretched their spree to 12 victories in 14 games on the road. Cissel and Kamm each drove across a run in each contest, Kamm featuring the nightcap with a double and two singles. Tom Oliver, star Sox outfielder, was injured in the first game when he crashed into the fence to rob Averill of a homerun.

Yanks Are Tough

For all their winning, however, the Indians are finding it difficult to whittle down the Yankees' big lead. The New Yorkers also captured a sabbath day doubleheader, taking the Chicago White Sox by scores of 4 to 3 and 3 to 2. Babe Ruth's single won the first in the 12th inning, and Charlie Ruffing pitched and batted his side to victory in the night cap.

Washington's winning streak was stretched to nine straight with a 9 to 2 triumph over the St. Louis Browns.

The Chicago Cubs picked up a full game on the idle Pittsburgh Pirates when Pat Malone and Charley Root quelled the Giants 8 to 1 and 8 to 2. Malone allowed six hits and struck out seven in the first.

The Boston Braves also gained ground on the leaders by socking Cincinnati twice, 5 to 3 and 3 to 1.

St. Louis and Brooklyn divided honors, the Cards winning 9 to 2 behind Paul Derringer and then losing the second, 8 to 5 when the Dodgers fell on Dizzy Dean and two relief pitchers for seven runs in the eighth and ninth frames.

Jimmy Lohr is New Association Golf Champion

Defeats Ralph McGowan, Butte des Morts, to Win Title

JIMMY LOHR of Riverdale Country club Sheboygan was named champion of the Northeastern Wisconsin association Saturday afternoon when he won a nip and tuck battle in the association finals from Ralph McGowan, Butte des Morts club one-up.

Lohr and McGowan played even the first seven holes, McGowan lost the eighth and the pair halved the nine, the Appleton man being one-down at the turn. Lohr took holes No. 10, 11 and 12 to advance four-up on McGowan. McGowan won No. 13, halved the fourteenth, and won the fifteenth and sixteenth. Halving No. 17 and 18, Lohr won the championship one-up.

Rammer Loses

Martin Rammer, Sheboygan, defending champion of the association was eliminated. The champion was upset by Jimmy Lohr, who took the nineteenth hole after they had divided the first eighteen. A feature of the play was that throughout the entire match not a hole was halved.

McGowan entered the championship round when he defeated August Brandt, also of Butte des Morts club, one up. McGowan went the course in his match with Brandt in 79. Lohr took an 81 in his round with the defending champion.

American Stars Finish Tryouts

Team One of Strongest in Years, Olympic Coach Claims

Palo Alto, Calif.—(AP)—The main battle now looms ahead for the American Olympic track and field team, emerging today with a few ear-aches and sore muscles after the record-smashing final tryouts and the intersectional sharpshooting along the sidelines.

Despite the utter abandon with which Uncle Sam's best athletes performed, cracking open four world records, equalling two other and surpassing the best Olympic records in 10 out of 18 final events, head Coach Lawson Robertson and his assistants expressed the belief they will be hard-pressed in the international competition at Los Angles.

Said Robertson: "This team seems stronger than four years ago in the short-distance races and high hurdles. We have some great vaulters and jumpers but all-around balance is lacking. We will be outclassed in all the distance races and may not do as well in the field events as we did at Amsterdam. The pole vault, high jump, discus and probably the shotput offer our best prospects of victory outside the track, where we may be fortunate to win as many as three or four events."

LaBorde Loses Tennis Crown

The tournament was played on the Oshkosh Tennis club's courts.

ESTABLISHING an early lead six runs, the Appleton Merchants yesterday strengthened its position in Little Fox league by defeating the Little Chute aggregation by a score of 9 to 7. The Little Chute aggregation rallied in the latter innings of the game to ring up a total of seven scores. For a time, their hitting streak looked good for a win, but the Merchants bore down on them to curb the onslaught.

Buss started on the mound for the Merchants and allowed one hit in the four innings. He was taken out to give Priebe, a newcomer, a chance to show his wares. But Priebe got himself into hot water at the start with wild hurling. He was relieved in the seventh by Tornow, who finished the game.

The Merchants tried two new players in the lineup. Bill Peotter, former high school athlete, who worked at second and first during the afternoon showed up well and was the big gun at the plate. He hammered two doubles and one triple in four trips to the plate.

Priebe, the other new man who went in as relief pitcher was somewhat wild, dueto nervousness. The Merchant management feels that with a little more practice he will be a valuable addition to the team. Janssen, who started for the Chuters was always in trouble, and was relieved by Wildenberg, who fared little better.

Gusto Takes $76,000 Prices at Arlington

Chicago —(AP)— Arlington park's richest prize, $76,600 for the classic, today belonged to M. L. Schwartz' Gusto, but two more valuable events supplied the interest for this week.

On Wednesday the Lassie Stakes, for two year old fillies with $10,000 in added money, will be decided, and on Saturday, another fixture, the Arlington handicap, $20,000 added, will offer C. V. Whitney's Equipoise another opportunity for more glory and profit.

The Lassie is expected to have a gross value of more than $30,000 and may settle up the championship of the division. Three eastern fillies, Velete, Edelweiss and Swivel are rated as powerful contenders, while the west probably will depend upon Wise Anne, and E. R. Bradley's Barn Swallow.

Chocolate, Shea May Clash for Title Aug. 4

Chicago—(AP)— Matchmaker Nate Lewis of the Chicago stadium, today expected to close a title bout between Kid Chocolate junior lightweight champion, and Eddie Shea of Chicago, for August 4.

Shea already has signed, and Chocolate tentatively has accepted terms for the ten round engagement, which would be the stadium's first offering in more than two months.

Los Angeles—Olympic games interest, held by European nations last week, swings back to the far east today with the arrival of Japan's second major party of athletes numbering more than 100.

These with 63 who arrived 10 days ago, will make the Nipponese the strongest force numerically in the field, until the United States' complete forces rally around the flag.

Pond All-Stars Win Three Tilts Over Weekend

Whip Manitowoc Crew Saturday—Cop Double Bill With Wausau Mutuals

EXHIBITING their ability to play airtight ball the Pond All-Stars won three games in a row over the weekend, defeating the Fischel Sports of Manitowoc in an engagement Saturday afternoon, and taking a double-header from the Wausau Mutuals Sunday morning and afternoon.

The All-Stars had little difficulty in turning back the Manitowoc aggregation Saturday afternoon by a score of 13 to 5. They hit the ball all over the lot for 14 hits. Ryan, who hurled for the Stars in the opening game of the weekend bill allowed the Manitowoc crew only eight hits. Huhn stood behind the pan, supporting Ryan.

Sunday morning the All-Stars won a nip and tuck battle from the Wausau champions by a score of 3 to 2, but in the afternoon battle, the Wausau aggregation weakened and was snowed under by a score of 10 to 1. The Stars rallied in the sixth frame to score two runs and win the game.

Two Good Hurlers

Mortell occupied the mound for the Stars in the morning engagement and held down the Wausau champs in fine style. In the afternoon fracas, Crone took the mound and exhibited a better brand of hurling. Huhn stood behind the pan in both engagements.

The Stars garnered three runs in the first inning in [illegible] game. They scored [illegible] the fourth, fifth [illegible] and up the game [illegible] the seventh.

The Mutuals scored their lone run in the fifth frame. Schmidt hurled for the Wausau aggregation in the afternoon, and Brandenburg occupied the mound in the morning session. Brandenburg is [illegible] as one of the most outstanding hurlers in the Wausau league, [illegible] won many games.

In Saturday's game the All-Stars ran up a nine-run lead in the first two innings, tallied two more in the third, and brought in one run in each of the fourth and fifth for a 13 total.

Fischel's crew went scoreless until the fifth and sixth. They scored two in the fifth and took three runs in two hits in the [illegible] frame.

Green Bay Sox Trim Appleton Team, 18 to 0

Fons and Crowe Battered Into All Corners of Lot for 19 Hits

GREEN BAY—Rapping Al Fons to all corners of the lot and treating his substitute "Dats" Crowe in similar fashion, the Green Bay Sox yesterday afternoon white-washed the Appleton Collegians in a one-sided fracas by a score of 18 to 0.

"Lefty" Petcka, who is rated as one of the most outstanding hurlers in Fox River Valley league competition, and who promises to go far with his ability as a moundsman gave the Appleton aggregation the run-around. He allowed them only five hits, and when the Appleton crew got into scoring position, he was supported by team members in royal fashion.

On each occasion that the Collegians threatened to score, double plays created a short and snappy ending. In the first two innings the game gave promise of being a royal battle, but Fons went to pieces in the third when the Sox rapped and slammed their way around the bases for nine runs. The Bays scored three in the fifth, five runs in the sixth and made it 18-0 in the eighth.

Leadership in the Fraternal Softball league will probably be decided tonight when the Appleton Junior Chamber of Commerce nine clashes with the DeMolay aggregation on the Wilson Junior high school diamond. At the present time the DeMolay aggregation is sitting on the top of the league ladder with eight wins and two losses, while the Jaces stand in third place with 7 wins and three losses. In the event the DeMolay team is defeated by the Jaces, three teams will be tied for first place.

Last Thursday night the Jaces won a hard fought battle with the Eagles by a score of 4 to 3. Tonight's game is a postponed fracas, and the Jaces are planning to walk into a three-way tie.

See Fight Over Cost Division of Seaway Project

Roosevelt - Hoover Tilt Foreshadows Political Battle

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington — The telegraph exchange between Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York and President Hoover anent the St. Lawrence river power development, irrespective of its political aspects, grew out of a gigantic project to make a deep waterway from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic Ocean.

It will supply as a by-product more electricity than is now consumed in all the homes of the United States.

The primary objective is to dredge the channel of the St. Lawrence so deep that vessels of ocean-going size will be able to steam in and out of the lakes, furnishing an all-water route for the grain and other products of the middle west.

One or more dams must be built, since locks are necessary, and the big river will then be so harnessed as to make available a tremendous amount of power. Power experts are figuring that there will be 2,200,000 horsepower to be derived from the power development at the International Rapids section and the American share, one-half, would be equivalent to around 5,000,000,000 kilowatt hours.

Treaty First Essential

A treaty with Canada is essential for execution of the vast scheme, since the two countries are mutually interested and any dam would be impossible without mutual consent.

It is generally understood that the provisions have been agreed upon, but they must be approved by Congress before becoming official.

The power project on the American side of the river will be entirely in the state of New York, which will build the powerhouse superstructures and install machinery and equipment, bearing the cost of that and also a share of the cost of works common to navigation and power.

New York Plan

The power issue, with which Governor Roosevelt is identified, is part of the picture because New York's power authority has made plans to obtain contracts for the sale of power and had indicated that if it couldn't make a satisfactory price it would ask for authority to build transmission lines.

It tried to obtain such authority from the last legislature, but was told to see first what it could do about contracts. The power authority, headed by Frank P. Walsh and including the noted expert Morris Llewellyn Cooke, was created solely to deal with the St. Lawrence matter and is directed to provide power at lowest possible cost to homes, farms and industries—in the order named.

$70,000,000 Difference

In negotiations between the federal and state governments the State Department proposed that the federal government do all the work on this side of the river and that New York pay $150,000,000 toward the cost. The power authority answered that such a charge would prevent it from furnishing cheap electricity and estimates the state's proper share at no more than $80,000,000.

Roosevelt telegraphed Hoover urging a conference at which the two could get that vital matter of cost settled before the signing of the treaty.

Hoover, replying that there was no need of such a conference, ignored the governor's contention that it was essential now to agree on the division of costs.

New York, urging speed, holds that a Hoover-Roosevelt agreement would insure prompt action on ratification and enabling legislation by Congress as against the possibility now of lengthy hearings, red tape, delay and confusion.

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER
Associated Press Financial Editor

New York—(P)—The adjournment of congress, for which Wall Street had long awaited with manifest lack of patience, brought more profit-taking sales than fresh buying into the stock market today.

The brightest aspect of the securities turned downward, after some hesitanacy in the morning, particularly those issues which had enjoyed fair advance last week.

Among issues losing a point or more were American Tobacco B, Liggett and Myers B, Consolidated Gas, Dupont, Pubzic Service of N. J., Coca Cola, Case, Brooklyn Manhattan Transit, Santa Fe, and American Telephone. Gotham Silk dropped 3 points. The U. S. Steel shares held up fairly well, and Westinghouse Electric sagged only a fraction, despite its adverse 2nd quarter earnings report. Union Pacific was firm for a time, and McIntyre Porcupine rose to a new peak for 1932. Detroit Edison and Homestake Mining mounted about 5 points, but the latter lost much of its gain.

Some quarters were disappointed at the market's failure to respond with enthusiasm to the ending of legislative uncertainty, but brokers pointed out that the actual event had been well discounted by the fair recovery of last week, and that with adjournment out of the way, there was little in the immediate outlook to inspire fresh buying, what with industry still in the grip of midsummer stagnation, and a number of second quarter earnings statements about to make their appearance.

The 2nd quarter report of Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing appeared over the weekend, and as a sample of second quarter earnings that may be expected from a number of important industrials, it was scarcely encouraging. The company's net loss for the period was $1,881,979, or somewhat larger than the loss of $1,320,148 of the 1st quarter. Nevertheless, the balance showed the company had been able to maintain a strong financial position, in common with many of the leading corporations, despite diminished business. Next week will bring the quarterly meetings and earnings statements of U. S. Steel and Bethlehem.

Reports of foreign buying, particularly from London, have been gratifying to the more bullishly inclined in Wall Street, although it has been difficult to determine any reasonabliy accurate estimate of the amount of this buying. At any rate, it is reported in some usually well-informed quarters that a number of European investors who sold out their American securities some time ago, are now manifesting considerable interest in replacing their lines. One group is said to have sent representatives here to carry out an investigation, including visits to a number of plants. The bullishly inclined say that a turn in the stock market should come in anticipation of improved corporate earnings, rather than await the actual improvement, if the market is to live up to its traditional reputation of forecasting business trends in advance. Since 1929, however, the market's reputation as a forecaster has been pretty thoroughly ruined.

Undertone Firm On Curb Market

Trading Shows Little Inclination Toward Expanding—Changes Narrow

New York —(P)— The curb market struggled against dullness today, but managed to hold a firm undertone. Activity in the early hours was around the recent rate of turnover and showed little inclination to expand in later trading.

There was evidence that offerings in a few issues were scarce. Aluminum of America had another upturn at the opening, reaching a quotation several points above last week's low, although volume of transactions was light. New England Power preferred resumed its advance, also in a thin market.

Utility common shares were steady. Associated Gas and Electric "A" sold off on early transactions, but the reaction was narrow. Electric Bond and Share, American Gas and American Superpower appeared in about their usual proportions of the total day's business, making slight changes.

New Jersey Zinc found good support, adding moderately to last week's advance. Swift issues encountered some profit-taking which was well absorbed.

Trading among the oils was stagnant. Standard of Indiana held virtually unchanged.

Prices Drop on Livestock Mart

Curtailed Receipts Fail to Bring Advances—Back Pressure Heavy

Chicago —(P)— Accumulation of fresh pork during the country-wide heat wave exerted a back-pressure which forced live hogs into lower price brackets notwithstanding curtailed receipts of swine. Packers here received 8,000 hogs from outside sources and the 20,000 fresh hogs offered in the selling pens were ample for any possible trade needs. Initial trading was fully 10 cents under Friday's average and $5.05 bought selected lights within the first half-hour of this session.

Eastern demand for butcher hogs was neither broad nor brisk. Local operators picked up good to choice heavy butchers at $4.90, but later bids on these were reduced to $4.75½. Pigs reached $5.00 at the outset but it was hard to get more than $4.30 for smooth packing sows.

Less than 10 head of cattle were forwarded direct to local killing establishment but general receipts were liberal and the market developed a sagged tendency from the out. Twelve markets reported an expansion of 21,000 head as compared with the previous Monday.

Checking the market ward movement of sheep and lambs, producers and feeding stations hoped to turn the tide in the live mutton trade. Locally conditions were favorable for a higher price schedule, packers receiving 2,400 lambs on through consignments. Opening quotations were nominally stronger.

Wheat Prices at Bottom Level on Chicago Market

Trade Volume Meager—Claim Canadian Grain Is Deteriorating

BY JOHN P. BOUGHAN
Associated Press Market Editor

Chicago—(P)—With the movement of the new domestic winter wheat crop in progress and a lack both of export and speculative demand, wheat wavered irresolutely today around bottom price ercords.

Fluctuations kept within fractional limits, and the volume of trading was unusually meager. Chicago crop observers near Regina, Saskatchewan, reported 6,000,000 acres of Canadian spring wheat deteriorating as a result of hot dry weather and dearth of subsoil moisture.

At times wheat was within ⅛ cent a bushel of the lowest price ever reached in Chicago. Leading trade authorities said prices were so low it would be folly to advocate the selling side, but asserted there was not much incentive for buying interests even at such levels. It was pointed out that crop prospects for spring wheat continued generally fair with possibility of black rust damage becoming more and more remote. however, some attention was given to complaints of drought effects in southern Saskatchewan.

Liverpool reported strength of wheat values there was influenced by further import demand from Russia for breadstuffs. There was also advices that harvesting in France was being interfered with by rain. A falling off of 4,192,000 bushels in the amount of wheat on ocean passage as compared with a week ago was noted. Corn and oats were bearishly affected by some selling on the part of recent buyers of corn.

Provisions were neglected.

Wall Street Briefs

New York —(P)— Wall Street has been skeptical of the reports of heavy foreign buying of American securities but now is more willing to concede that such buying has taken place in view of the assertion of foreign exchange experts that recent weakness of several European currencies resulted from purchase of dollar exchange to finance the deals. The weakness of sterling in particular last week was attributed to operations of this kind.

The RKO Theatres Corporation, and Fox Film Corporation have entered into an agreement whereby the former obtains a 5-year franchise covering all fox productions for the 48 RKO theaters in greater New York. The agreement becomes Effective Sept. 1.

Merger was announced today of the Belding Hemingway company and the company and the Corticelli Silk company. The new company will be called the Belding Hemingway Corticelli company. The president will be R. C. Kramer.

Seaways Treaty Has Signatures Of Canada, U. S.

St. Lawrence Project Still Requires Approval of Legislatures

houses, one on either side of the international boundary.

There will be a navigation canal and lock on the Canadian side opposite Crysler island.

The lower dam is recommended to be located at Barnhart island with two power houses, one on either side of the international boundary with a canal and two locks on the American side.

The power to be developed at Crysler island is estimated at 529,960 horsepower. At Barnhart island it is estimated there will be a development of 1,607,000 horsepower.

Seven years is estimated by the engineers as a reasonable time for completing the work.

The treaty provides that thediversion of water from the Great Lakes by the Chicago drainage canal shall conform to the quantity provided under the United States Supreme court decision of April 21, 1930. No further diversion is to be authorized except by authority of the international joint commission on which Canada and the United States are equally represented.

Construction Provisions

Under Article 1 of the treaty Canada agrees to build and maintain the works in the Thousand Islands section below Oak point, and to construct, maintain and operate a side canal with a lock opposite Crysler island and to construct the works required for the rehabilitation of the Canadian side of the international boundary.

The United States agrees to build, maintain and operate the works in the Thousand Islands section above Oak point; to construct and operate a side canal, with locks opposite Barnhart island, and to construct works on the United States side of the international boundary.

The works in the Thousand Islands section have already been largely completed.

A temporary St. Lawrence International Rapids commission of 10 members would be set up, the United States agreeing to provide the funds for the International Rapids section work, the work on each side of the line to be done as largely as possible by nations of the territory on which it stands and with the materials of the country in which the work is done.

The two governments reserve the right to modify these plans by mutual agreement.

Each government will arrrange for construction in its own territory of such power houses, superstructures, machinery and equipment as may be desired for the development of power.

Solve Own Problems

Each is free to settle the purely domestic question of the utilization of water power.

Another article provides for equal division between the United States and Canada of the water power utilized for power purposes in the International Rapids section of the river and for regulation of the flow of the St. Lawrence to protect shippiing facilities.

The construction of works does not confer upon either party proprietaries or legislative rights in the territory where the improvement is made.

Either party is allowed to construct in its own territory alternative canal and channel facilities for navigation in the international section of the river or in waters connecting the Great Lakes.

Rights of navigation accorded under existing treaties are to be maintained, notwithstanding the provisions for termination contained in any such treaty.

Both countries are released from responsibility for damages to persons or property in the construction work. By this article both countries are required to provide at their own expense land necessary for carrying out the work.

Foreign Markets At a Glance

London — Trading on the stock exchange was quiet with small irregular movements, foreign issues and industrials being weak in the morning. There was a fair recovery later in Paris favorites and gilt-edged securities with the closing quiet.

Paris—Prices on the bourse were stimulated by the excellent tendency in New York and strength in French renes. Indications were that the market would take calmly the announcement of the probable conversion of war loans. Opening quotations were higher and well maintained by generous demands.

Berlin—Prices opened weak on the boerse as a result of political clashes at Altona and other points, but recovered somewhat toward the close.

Hoover to Sign Relief Measure; Session Ended

Home Loan Bank Bill Passed With Currency Expansion Provision

bill carrying a currency expansion rider upon which the senate insisted.

Senator Couzens, (R., Mich.) saying on the floor that he hoped the Republican leader, Watson of Indiana, would be defeated in the fall elections.

Many minor pieces of legislation go to the White House for approval.

The closing session which lasted 13½ hours was packed with interest. It started with the senate sending the relief bill to the White House and then saw the two branches vote and vote and vote in an effort to finish the work on the Home Loan bill.

The house rejected twice the Glass amendment to permit a currency expansion of nearly $1,000,000,000. After Speaker Garner caught a train for home in Texas, his branch finally receded. Between votes on currency expansion, the two houses occupied their time in jolly and sometimes bitterly sarcastic debate, and passed many measures of lesser importance.

Glass Resolution

The senate spent several hours considering the Glass resolution, voting 37 to 21 to take it up. This was only two votes short of the two-thirds necessary for approval of a constitutional amendment. Many senators were absent.

This resolution would require ratification by state conventions. One of the leading anti-prohibitionists, Senator Bingham, (R., Conn.) insisted it would not carry out the platform pledge of either party. Senator Norris (R., Neb.,) tried to have it referred to a committee, but was unsuccessful.

When all these things had been done, an adjournment resolution was adopted in both branches and the weary lawmakers went home. They left behind them records that showed these things approved since December:

The $270,000,000 Hoover debt moratorium.

The two acts setting up a $3,800,000,000 Reconstruction Finance corporation.

The Glass-Steagall bill to liberalize banking laws and create additional credit.

The $1,118,500,000 tax law.

An "economy" bill to save around $150,000,000.

The Norris bill to minimize the use of injunctions in labor disputes.

The addition of $125,000,000 to farm loan bank capital.

Submission to states of a constitutional amendment to abolish "lame ruck" sessions.

Hoover's Vetoes

The Democratic tariff bill.

The first Garner-Wagner relief bill.

They saw approved by one house but not the other:

Philippine independence.

The Goldsborough bill directing the treasury and federal reserve board to stabilize the dollar.

A proposal to cash the bonus.

A proposed expenditure of about a billion dollars for a treaty navy.

A bill by Senator Glass to reform banking laws.

Demands for farm relief legislation.

Proposals in both houses to repeal the eighteenth amendment and modify the Volstead act.

They had established committees to:

Investigate the farm board.

Study veterans benefits.

Inquire into Reconstruction corporation loans.

Seek additional means of reducing federal expenses.

Scan the St. Lawrence waterway treaty.

Watch campaign expenditures.

Review tax laws, searching out federal statutes that duplicate state levies.

Advise Investors To Purchase Only Best Securities

Careful Scrutiny Should Precede All Investments

BY GEORGE T. HUGHES
(Copyright, 1932, by Cons Press)

New York — As depression drags along its weary way it seems as if no real need could be served by discussion of or advice about investment. Too many of us are concerned not with the safe and profitable employment of surplus funds but with the stern necessity of raising the wherewithal to pay our debts or even our day to day living expenses.

Yet the accumulation of money does go on. It goes on in every depression and eventually it makes itself felt in advancing prices for securities. At first it is interested only in Government bonds, because they are safe, because they are liquid, and because they do give some return which gold in the safety deposit box does not. As the demand for these government obligations broadens out the yield declines and at that point securities a shade lower in grade begin to attract attention.

Even then, however, it is the ultra conservative variety that is acceptable. A mere trace of speculation is sufficient to frighten away the buyer. The recovery cannot go much beyond this stage without tangible sign of improvement in business. There after the markets move with great irregularity, everything depending on the activity represented by the security in question. There are only a few obligations which are so strongly entrenched that the trade outlook makes no difference and the longer the depression has lasted the smaller the number of these obligations.

Recovery is never uniform. It shows itself in some industries before it does in others and even while some of the others are still losing ground. Capital is timid about taking anything for granted. Again the degree of timidity varies directly with the length of the depression. That is why the markets are so slow to respond to favorable news now.

What is the moral? Well, assuming for the sake of the argument that we have more than an academic interest in the price movement, it is that we too should confine new commitments to the highest grade of securities.

Kaukauna—With the defeat of the league leading Service Laundries, 6 to 3, Friday evening at the hands of the Weyenberg Meats, three teams are tied for the top position. All of the teams have shown considerably stronger lineups since the start of the second half of the league schedule and as play advances competition is becoming more keen. All are making strong bids for league honors with Ludtke Specials, winners of the first half of the schedule, striving hard to keep at the top of the loop.

Monday's games will have some effect on the league standings as several league leaders will meet in the schedule. Kalupa Bakers will engage Weyenberg's Meats at the playgrounds and Ludtke Specials clash with Van's Buffets at Park school. A victory is necessary for the Weyenberg team to keep that aggregation at the top of the circuit. All of the teams are well matched and the outcome of the games will be tossups.

On Tuesday evening the Service Laundry aggregation will defend their share of the top of the heap clashing with Mereness Transfers, champions of 1931. Bayorgeon's will engage the cellar champion Eagles. Wednesday Bayorgeon's meet the Kalupa Bakers while Ludtke Specials mix with Mereness Transfers. Thursday's games will close the week's schedule with Service Laundries battling the Buffets, and the Eagles versus Weyenbergs.

No More Piles

How to End Terrible Agony Without Salves or Cutting

Thousands of Pile sufferers do not know that the cause of Piles is internal—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel.

That is the scientific truth about Piles—the real reason why salves and suppositories do not give permanent relief, why cutting does not remove the cause.

Your itching, bleeding or protruding Piles will only go when you actually remove the cause — and not one minute before. External treatments can't do this — an internal medicine should be used. HEM-ROID, the prescription of Dr J. S Leonhardt, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, drives out congested blood, heals and restores the almost dead parts.

HEM-ROID tablets have an almost unbelievable record of success. So why waste time on external remedies or worry about an operation when Schlintz Bros and druggists everywhere invite every sufferer to try HEM-ROID with guarantee of money-back if it does not end their Piles, no matter how stubborn the case? Adv.
